What Made It Topple?
Many Pow Wow Doctors.
Two Slogans.
The Sloppy Season.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

WALL STREET wants to know what made the top heavy stock market topple over. Just when it did. Two things fixed the date of what was soon to happen, anyhow. The violent drop in Canadian Marconi made geese realize that stocks can go both ways, faster down than up. And call money at 12 per cent was the finishing touch. Usury cannot keep fools from gambling, but it can ruin them neatly, at a convenient time.

Many believed that 12 per cent money, caused by the speculation craze meant 12 per cent for a whole year, not realizing that over a few days or weeks, such an interest rate makes little difference. Some of the strong men will step in, collect bargains, at the right time and be praised for "preventing a panic."

In Pennsylvania "pow wow doctors," vestigial remainder of witchcraft days, prey on the superstitious. They cure warts by reciting verses from the Bible, or rubbing a piece of fat on the wart and burying the fat in the ground. They treat cancer and other diseases by muttering meaningless words.

The law can stop this gradually, for it says no doctor must talk or practice nonsense, unless he has a regular license. The law cannot reach, unfortunately, the great army of pow wow doctors in the field of politics and statesmanship. They will go on pow wowing to the end of time—and get paid for it.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, having shaken out the widows, orphans and poor fools investors that owned the road once, is now making money and displaying efficiency.

It has invented a slogan for employes that do the real work. This is how it goes: "Employes will please be long on service and short on excuses for low pay." When railroads are increasing their wages and shortening hours, they need remember their debts and "do unto others."

Christmas is near, and the sloppy sentimental season is here. Uncle Sam loves everybody, wants to get into a league of nations, a world court, a peace pact, or something or other. Anything to snuggle up and admit that we are lonely.

We should study Mussolini. He lives in Europe and knows the people. He also wants peace, but not at any price. In fact he says "We are very cautious about granting our friendship to anyone who has not given us necessary guarantees in exchange."

This country is like a lost poodle, jumping into anybody's lap. What sort of "guarantee" has Europe given us? It calls our country "Uncle Shylock," because we ask payment of part of ten billions lent in war. And it arranges secret naval agreements, leaving us out. At what exact moment since 1776 did this country become unable to look after itself?

Canada, almost as big as Europe, bigger than the United States, on this continent, concentrates attention on the common man. Farmers are looked after. There is "adult education" for men anxious to make up for lost time. And the Canadian wheat pool is a great and successful marketing plan.

Some of Canada's ideas would be called paternalism, even half way Bolshevism, here. This country is so busy looking after the exceptional man, the big fellow at the top, that little attention is left over for the common man. But government will get around to him eventually—if he wakes up and insists on it.

Chicago Chamber of Commerce has devoted three days to the question of aircraft manufacture, while Chicago offered an admirable airship exposition, including new models. The El Paso (Texas) Chamber of Commerce sent a flying machine to Mexico to congratulate the new president on his inauguration, expressing friendship and a desire to do business.

Flying machines will soon be as important to travel and commerce as railroads are now, and as stage coaches once were. Chambers of commerce that are wise will interest themselves in aviation, in which, by the way, the chamber of commerce of Seattle specializes more intensely than any other chamber in the country.

BALM SUIT DEFENDANT FAINTS

Mrs. Eva O. West of Wellington rd., Medford, defendant in a $20,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Middlesex Superior Court today when her husband testifying in her behalf, was told she had been caught with George J. Franklin in a raid in the Back Bay.

The husband, Frank E. West, a Manchester, N. H., insurance broker, who was absent last week when testimony regarding the raid was given, had declared under cross-examination that he did not believe any of the charges brought by Mrs. Agnes C. Franklin of Dudley st., Boston, against his wife.

The unexpected denouement occurred when Atty. John J. O'Connor for Mrs. Franklin began to question West about the raid and it developed that the witness had not heard of it.

It was described at one of the earlier sessions of the trial, when Sergt. Frank J. McNabb of Station 15 told of going to a Huntington ave. house with Mrs. Franklin, where the door was opened by Franklin and Mrs. West was found.

"Didn't you know about this raid?" asked Atty. O'Connor.

"No," replied the witness.

'BIG BILL' KELIHER ON TRIAL

Ex-Governor Channing H. Cox wanted to borrow several million and ex-Governor Eugene N. Foss asked a loan of $10,000,000 off William J. ("Big Bill") Keliher, he told one of his alleged theft-conspiracy victims, according to testimony today in superior court.

In that court Keliher went on trial today with John J. Duffley and William P. Connolly on indictments charging conspiracy to steal from Henry L. Hinds, Boston contractor, and Henry H. Harris of Alden Park Manor.

Hinds, the first witness, said that Keliher telephoned him in October, stated that he (Keliher) had the disposition of $200,000 belonging to the widow of a Portland bootlegger and that he was offering Hinds a chance to make some money.

For a commission of three per cent Keliher would loan money to Hinds, he said. Subsequently, according to Hinds, there were several conferences.

KING FACES NEW CRISIS

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—England this evening was waiting with tense anxiety for further official bulletins concerning the progress of King George.

Fleet st., metropolitan newspaper center, and, indeed, the whole public have been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the next two or three days will be critical.

Three weeks of illness have so undermined the King's recuperative power and so taxed his heart that his life undoubtedly is in danger.

URGES BACK BAY TUBES

Telegrams urging an appropriation for extension of pneumatic mail tubes to the Back Bay station were sent today by Leonard J. Raymond, chairman of the committee on postal facilities of the Chamber of Commerce, to Senator Francis E. Warren, chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations, and First Asst. Postmaster-General John H. Bartlett.

The telegrams explained the pneumatic tube service from railroad terminals to the Back Bay would be of great benefit to Boston, inasmuch as mail now must be trucked through congested downtown areas

MAYOR HITS SLOW WORK ON SNOW

With the streets of downtown Boston turned into rivers of slush after the storm, Mayor Nichols today sharply criticized the work of removal, declaring it was far below the average the city has established with its new and up-to-date machinery. He promised they would be clear tomorrow unless more snow arrives.

The mayor also announced that he will ask the Commission of Public Safety to confirm George Foss as deputy public works commissioner, thereby leaving vacant an office under whose jurisdiction the work of snow removal comes.

The sudden thaw, coming close on the heels of the snowstorm, turned into slush piles of snow which had been swept up into the gutters by the city plows and left there, officials claimed, because of the presence of parked automobiles.

Complaints began to pour into City Hall at an early hour, and when the mayor arrived at noon, following a tour of the city, he found many protests awaiting him.

The mayor was in a fighting frame of mind and minced no words in

TOTAL LOSS OF SHIP IS FEARED

Queenstown, Ireland, Dec. 10—The liner 324 passengers, including 71 from Boston, were imperiled today when the White Star liner Celtic went on the rocks in a gale near Roches Point lighthouse.

Aid was summoned and, in spite of rough water, the passengers were safely transferred to tenders, but it was more than eight hours before all were landed at this port.

The Celtic, with a huge hole directly under her engine room, listed badly to port as the tide receded, leaving her on the rocks at the harbor entrance and taking in water.

Rescue of the passengers was performed with remarkable dispatch, though only one tender at a time could go along-

STOCKS RALLY AFTER SHARP MID-DAY BREAK

Wall Street prices see-sawed violently up and down, then up again in today's hectic trading.

Sharp dips in the high-priced specialties unsettled the market temporarily after an opening burst of strength that carried nearly a score of issues up from $5 to $25 a share.

Radio Corp. common, off $72 a share Saturday, ran up $18 to $214 in the early dealings. Next it crashed to $275, and then jumped to $312. The stock sold at $420 a share Wednesday.

Montgomery Ward fell from $342 to $305.50, then sold up to $335. National Tea went from $330 to $310, then sold at $320.

side to take them off. A British destroyer co-operated in the rescues.

Once ashore, many of those from Boston and New York rushed to cable offices to send reassuring messages home.

There were 27 survivors of the Vestris tragedy among those taken from the Celtic, most of them members of the Vestris crew returning to their homes in England.

The Bostonians, who boarded the liner December 2 at Boston, included a large group known as the "Irish Christmas party," coming here for the holidays. Following several hours of suspense on their part and the part of their friends, many of them were greeted on the dock with mingled tears and smiles.

HAD NO PILOT

The liner went aground because the wind was too strong for the pilot to board her outside the harbor.

Capt. Gilbert Berry, whose brother, Capt. J. H. Berry, is port captain for the White Star line at Boston, brought the vessel around Southeastern Island in the gale and was making for Cork harbor and Queenstown (Cobh) when the Celtic piled on the rocks.

All the passengers were ordered to don lifebelts and those who had not come on deck were rounded up and informed of the danger.

Twenty-eight lifeboats were made ready, but none was lowered.

C. W. Wilson of Toronto was nearly hurled from his berth by the impact of the ground-ing.

He came ashore only partly dressed, as did many others.

Arthur Packson of Trenton, N. J., was on deck hoping to get his first glimpse of a pilot boarding an ocean liner at sea when he was thrown off his feet as the Celtic crashed.

Those coming ashore said that some of the passengers fainted, but that there was no panic, although everybody was greatly alarmed.

SAVE LUGGAGE

The most that anybody brought ashore was hand luggage, but it was said that the heavy baggage of all the passengers would be saved and some of the cargo salvaged, although great difficulty was foreseen.

Passengers bound for Liverpool probably will be taken by train to Belfast and cross the Channel tonight, arriving at their destination early tomorrow. The White Star line, however, is considering chartering a special steamer to take them direct from here to Liverpool.

John Joseph Kilcoyn of Boston said he was in the smoking-room when he felt the liner "shiver" from end to end. Plants and glassware were rocked off the tables.

Kolcoyn and several companions continued playing cards until a steward entered, saying:

"DISCIPLINE PERFECT"

"Gentlemen, why not get to your boat stations."

That was their first realization that something serious had occurred. They were given lifebelts by the steward and went to the lifeboats where they found many others already standing around.

"Discipline was perfect," said this Boston man. "When it developed that there was no immediate danger, the steward brought us breakfast."

A scant three yards saved the Celtic from a headon crash into towering rocks, according to B. Sheehan, another passenger. He said:

"The rocks loomed suddenly out of the mist. They seemed so close that it looked as though I could have stretched out my hand and touched them. Three yards more to the westward and there would have been no chance of saving the liner. The waves were dashing wildly at times and there was a furious wind, accompanied by heavy rain."

The Celtic is reported to have 16 feet of water in her engine compartment and 12 feet elsewhere.

The entire crew remained on board to aid in attempts to float the liner. Later these efforts were suspended to await another high tide, and most of the crew were brought ashore, leaving only the master and officers aboard.

Leading officials of the White Star Line and insurance representatives are coming here to inspect the vessel tomorrow.

The sky is clear, but there is a heavy ground swell and a southeast wind. While the passengers were being removed a cold rain was falling, adding to their troubles as they descended to the smaller craft which tossed on the wind-swept water.

The rescued were taken to a hotel for lunch at the expense of the line. The Vestris survivors left by rail for Belfast, whence they will continue on to Liverpool to report to the owners of the Vestris.

HUNDREDS AT SCENE

Hundreds of sightseers went to view the helpless liner on her rocky perch.

The spot where she struck is only a few miles from where she would ordinarily have cast anchor to transship passengers and mail for Queenstown.

The location is known as Cow and Calf Rocks. Michael Johnston, lighthouse keeper at Roches Point, witnessed the accident.

"Only the fact that she was going 'dead slow' averted a terrible disaster," he reported by telephone.

"Unless she is lightened and quickly taken off, she will be broken up where she lies.

"It is a melancholy sight to see the liner fast. She is squarely on the rocks, resting on a flat spur about 300 yards from Roche's Point. Her head is so firmly wedged that there is hardly a trace of motion of her hull.

"It is a mystery to me how she went on the rocks. It was high water.

"She has been badly damaged and if the sea becomes bad will doubtless become a total wreck. It all depends on the weather. Bad weather, and heavy seas would break her up where she lies."

Two big Dutch tugs, the Gelizee and Moryecock, met with no success in efforts to pull the Celtic off the rocks.

J. A. Cumming, travel expert of the Boston office of the line, was personally conducting the Christmas party from Boston.

DANGER IN LANDING

Except for this group, which was to land here, practically all the other passengers were asleep when the liner grounded. That was at 5:40 a. m., local time.

The grinding of the rocks along the hull caused a shock of fear through all aboard and the decks immediately became alive with passengers and unoccupied members of the crew.

Fearful that a hole had been smashed in the bow and that the sea might be pouring in, passengers sought the ship's officers for information. After an interval, in which the suspense heightened, it became apparent that the liner was lodged securely on the rocks and that the chief danger lay in the operation of transferring those aboard to smaller craft.

The Dutch tugs were the first to reach the scene. The Celtic meanwhile was sending radios to Lloyd's and preparations were made for the rescue, which was begun in exceptionally brief time.

It was hours before the check of the passenger list showed that the last voyager had gone over the side to the tenders and was on the way to shore.

The crew remained aboard to aid in the attempts to float the liner. After a time these attempts were suspended to await the next high tide.

SHIP POPULAR HERE

The Celtic is one of the largest and most popular of the vessels in transatlantic passenger service. Boston ocean voyagers especially have favored her. The Celtic regularly made a Boston stop in running between New York and ports on this side.

The liner sailed from Boston a week ago yesterday, having gone there to take on passengers after starting her voyage at New York. There were 108 cabin passengers, 97 tourist passengers and 119 third class aboard when she left Boston.

As far as known, the rescues were effected without a single mishap. The chief hardship for the passengers was the fear of tragedy, with the Vestris disaster fresh in the minds of all.

1926 ACCIDENT

Crews of three tenders were credited with taking off nearly all the rescued.

The second message that came from the Celtic was a reassuring one for those ashore, alarmed by her first radio call. The second radio said that a tug was already standing by and another was approaching.

A British destroyer was ordered to proceed to the scene to stand by and later assist in the rescues.

The Celtic figured in a serious accident in December, 1926, while off Fire Island as she was en route from New York to Boston to pick up passengers for Queenstown. There were 252 passengers, one less than today's list, aboard when the liner was rammed by the freighter Anaconda of the American Diamond line.

A gaping hole was torn in the side of the Celtic where the prow of the freighter crashed through her steel plates. The liner went to Boston under her own steam and put up for repairs.

The Celtic is a four-deck, twin-screw steamer owned by the White Star line. Her tonnage is 21,000.

She was constructed in 1901 at Belfast, Ireland, and has been sailing from Boston for many years. She is one of the best known transatlantic liners to call at this port. She is 680 feet long.

ONCE OCEAN QUEEN

If the Celtic pounds to pieces on the rocks it will be the end of as colorful a career as ever liner had.

She was queen of the ocean, finest thing on the seven seas, when launched 27 years ago, and her arrival at each port at which she touched was an event.

During the World War she was torpedoed and "mined." A German submarine hurled a torpedo against her plates on April 1, 1918, but the damage was not so serious as to prevent her making port.

She carried thousands of troops and on one voyage struck a mine in the North Atlantic, but luckily escaped this accident with slight damage. Her luck has been noteworthy, for after her full share of collisions, both minor and major, she has come back each time to plow the ocean lanes as good as ever.

HUB MESSAGE FROM CELTIC REASSURING

"Everything gis satisfactory," was the reassuring message received today by the Boston offices of the White Star Line from officials of the line at New York who had been in communication by cable with Queenstown regarding the grounding of the Celtic.

Nothing was said in the message about the chances of salvaging the big liner, it being entirely concerned with the passengers. It said that they were all being landed at Queenstown.

Capt. J. H. Berry, port captain for the White Star Line here, was intensely interested because the captain of the Celtic is his brother. Both have had years of experience with vessels of the line.

The sailing of the Celtic from Boston on Dec. 2 for the voyage which has ended so unfortunately was advertised as an ideal sailing for persons wishing to spend the holidays with friends or relatives abroad, and a large party of tourists was aboard under the personal conduct of J. H. Cumming, travel expert of the company.

ences, to which he brought and introduced Duffley as "Mr. Stackpole" and Connolly as "Mr. Shelton."

Also they went to a Court st. bank on one occasion, Hinds said, and he paid Keliher $450 as an advance on his commission.

Keliher declared the $200,000 was in Portland and would be brought to Boston by airplane, witness said.

According to Hinds, "Big Bill" confided that ex-Governor Cox lost $18,000,000 after relinquishing the governorship and wanted to borrow several millions, while ex-Governor Foss also was "in a hole" and wanted to borrow $10,000,000 off Keliher.

HUB IN FEDERAL DRIVE TO SMASH BIG DRUG RING

TO TOUR ISLAND ON FOOT FOR NEW BASE

Deception Island (Antarctic), Dec. 9 (Sunday)—(Via Whaler Hektoria and Kup, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station)—Dec. 8—The monoplane Los Angeles of this expedition caused a fatal accident in a scouting flight over Snow Island today.

The victim, we are glad to report, was only a bird—Ossifraga gigantica by name, an enormous specimen of the Albatross family known locally as "Nellies."

The mishap was not entirely a joke, for it might easily have been fatal for us. Pilot Joseph Crossan and I were taking advantage of a short interval between snow storms to fly our seaplane over Snow Island in search of landing fields.

We were about to alight when the bird, one of thousands about the harbor, flew into our path and smashed into the butts on the propeller. The bird weighed 10 or 12 pounds, with a wing spread of eight to ten feet across, and, if it had struck the propeller tips or the pilot's windshield, disaster would have been likely.

Under low clouds without sunshine, it was impossible to judge surface of Snow Island accurately.

Conspicuous near its edges, however, were crevasses many hundreds yards long and wide enough to engulf our airplane.

We must examine the island on foot before we can use it for a base.

It is snowing again.

FULLER SCORES SOS DELAY ON VESTRIS

Scoring the belated S O S from the Vestris as "probably having for its motive the saving in a payment for salvage by the shipowners," Governor Fuller today greeted Lionel Licorish at the State House as the outstanding hero of the disaster.

To the 23-year-old quartermaster, who saved more than 20 lives, the Governor presented a gold stickpin bearing the seal of the state.

"I have imagined the scene—the listing of the ship, the final decision to launch the lifeboats, the delayed S O S that brought relief too late, the inability to launch the lifeboats on the high side of the ship, the distress and the confusion, with death and disaster on every side," the Governor said.

"Out of this wreckage and disaster, occasioned in the first instance by a delay in calling help, a call which should have gone out in the interests of the powerless passengers, probably having as its motive a saving in payment for salvage for the shipowners, stands in contrast to your splendid courage and heroism.

"An inquiry into the disaster and the placing of responsibility has been long and invovved. Some public inquiries take a long time and usually lead nowhere. In contrast to this situation it would not take long for the public sitting as a board of inquiry to elect you as the outstanding hero of the occasion."

Lynn to Eliminate Grade Crossings

A plan to eliminate the grade crossings on the Boston, Revere, Beach & Lynn railroad at Commercial, Shepherd and Pleasant sts., Lynn, at which there have been one or more deaths this year, was proposed to officials of the road today by Mayor Ralph S. Bauer.

The pla calls for diverting the trains to the Boston & Maine elevated structure after they cross the Pines river between Revere and Lynn. The B. & M. has an elevated right-of-way through Lynn with four tracks, but uses only two of them. This route would take the trains into the old freight yard on Market st., where Mayor Bauer suggests a new terminal.

YEGGS GET $273 CASH AND 15 RADIO SETS

Safe crackers opened three safes in Greater Boston over the week-end and in addition stole 15 radio sets from a Dorchester store.

The total loot gained was $1728, of which $273 was in cash.

When proprietors of the Globe Furniture Co., 1496 Dorchester ave., Dorchester, opened up shop and found that their tastefully furnished living room in the main show window wasn't livable any more.

Where they had been 15 electric radio sets arranged intriguingly on Saturday night, there was not a single radio set present today. The proprietors discovered that the thieves also had opened a small safe in the office and had stolen $85 in cash, making a total loss of $1140 for the week-end. Each electric radio was valued at $97.

Many of the sets were console cabinets.

The other two safes opened were in Charlestown and Waltham, the yeggs securing $158 from the safe of the Hollywood Theatre in Chelsea st., Charlestown, but failing to get anything from the safe in the Boston Branch Grocery in Main st., Waltham.

COURT DENIES GUSTIN WRIT

The last legal obstacle to the extradition to Detroit of Frank Wallace, alias Gustin, of South Boston, to stand trial for murder was removed today.

On motion of Wallace's own counsel, Judge James A. Lowell of federal court dismissed Wallace's petition for a writ of habeas corpus which, if granted, would have released him from state custody.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court already has denied Wallace's appeal to Governor Fuller's action in signing extradition papers.

NEWTON WATER CONDEMNED

Following a microscopic examination of Newton's water supply by the State Department of Public Health, Commissioner J. Clifton Whitney of the Newton water department today announced the water had been condemned and that the city is being supplied by the Metropolitan system.

Commissioner Whitney said state engineers found vegetable growth in the wooden conduit in the water plant and advised closing the plant.

He revealed that examination of the water was made some weeks ago by Arthur D. Weston, assistant engineer of the Department of Public Health.

Warrant Out for Santa! Don't Tell Children

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP)—If all the children are out of the room, here's a bit of news for the grown folks: There's a warrant out for Santa Claus.

Jolly old Kris Kringle punched a man on the jaw and knocked some teeth out. The man, Albert Cohen, went to the police about it and is smash as he didn't know St. Nick's real name, the warrant simply called for the delivery to the jail of "Santa Claus."

Cohen was standing at State and Randolph. So was Santa. So was a little boy. The little boy was consumed with an irresistible urge to investigate Santa Claus' whiskers, and he did.

The whiskers, attached to a rubber band, left a great gap below Santa's chin, then suddenly snapped back into place.

When they snapped back, Santa howled and cut loose with a haymaker at the little rascal. The lad ducked nearly. Not so Mr. Cohen, who was standing directly behind, smiling broadly. He lost several of his teeth.

Santa, with whiskers askew, fled. Probably by now he is back at the North Pole.

FORGIVES HER SON, BUT BARS BRIDE, 51

A mother's undying love and an open door await Leonard Wade, 21-year-old husband of a 51-year-old bride, in spite of the scolding letter he sent to his mother in Scampoint from a honeymoon in Wachusetts.

Mrs. William Wade, the mother, disclosed that the parental hearth on Stetson ave., blazes with forgiveness for the youthful bridegroom in the May-and-December marriage but will never receive the new Mrs. Wade.

"Even though I am heartbroken, Leonard must know I forgive him, and any time that he wants to come back the door is open," the mother said, "but that Deare woman needn't think she can ever enter the door of this house, for there'll be trouble if she tries to."

You'll never regret a kindness

NO BALM FOR HER HEART

DIES ON 'L' CAR GOING TO MEET SANTA CLAUS

The Christmas bank checks Mrs. Hannah Cleary was to cash for her four children today and the Christmas shopping she was to have done all have reverted to the list of unimportant things.

Mrs. Cleary died on a trolley car at Sullivan sq. terminal while on her way to meet her husband, Michael J. Cleary, Park st., Charlestown, and from there go shopping with him.

She was 45 years old and her home was at 21 Grant st., Somerville.

She slumped down in the seat when the car reached the terminal.

SCORE FORCED TO FLEE INTO DRIVING SNOW

Early morning fires drove five Somerville families and two Charlestown families to the streets today in the midst of the driving snow storm. Huddled into such clothes as they could hastily snatch up, a score of men and women were assisted out of doors by firemen. All were sheltered in the houses of neighbors.

The Somerville blaze was in the basement of a two-story brick block at 315-325 Broadway, Winter Hill. Damage of $1500 was done to the building and to the stocks of the Winter Hill Hardware Co. and the Winter Hill Florist Shop. Smoke forced the occupants of five upstair apartments to leave their homes.

The Charlestown fire was in the bakeshop on John Thelow at 49 Main st. Damage of $4000 was done. Smoke drove out the occupants of two upstairs tenements.

Even Manhole Covers Must Be Nailed Down

Nominated now as the South End's boldest—and brawniest—thief is the unknown miscreant who today stole a cast-iron manhole cover from Camden st. and Columbus ave.

Petroleum Frederick Fretey found the cover gone this afternoon, reported the loss and was rewarded by orders to stand guard over the hole until a new cover could be obtained.

SEEKS PAY ON RAIL LOSSES

Approval of payments of losses resulting from the sale of abandoned and salvaged street railway tracks, wires and poles was asked today of the public utilities commission by the Worcester Consolidated and Springfield Street Railway companies.

Bentley W. Warren, counsel for both, told the commission the loss to the Springfield company was $1,074,805.

If authorized, he said it proposed to charge off the premiums paid on capital stock amounting to $279,174, leaving a net loss of $805,629 to be distributed over 10 years.

The loss on the Worcester road was $985,315.

Charlestown "Speed" Boy Is Sent Away

Raymond C. Thompkins, 15-year-old "speed demon" of Avon pl., Charlestown, was committed today indefinitely to the State Industrial School at Shidley for larceny of an auto.

Six charges against him included racing through Charlestown streets in a stolen car and seriously injuring Frank Succardo, 23, of Belmont st.

ON WATCH FOR SHIPMENTS FROM N. Y.

With Boston's federal narcotic agents carrying out their part of the plans, a drive to smash what is believed to be the biggest nation-wide drug ring in recent history was started today at the direction of federal narcotic officials at Washington.

Federal agents in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Baltimore and other large eastern cities are watching railroad and steamship terminals for drug shipments from New York.

The drive followed the seizure of $2,000,000 in drugs in New York last week on tips received from investigation of the Rothstein case. It is the start of carefully laid plans to crush a drug syndicate operating here and abroad.

Arnold Rothstein, murdered racketeer and gambler, according to narcotic officials, was the master mind of the international drug ring.

"We believe they are now on the run," William Blanchard, deputy commissioner of the narcotic division, said today.

The first indictment by the federal grand jury, in connection with the ring, was handed down in New York today, and named Joseph Unger, alias Myers, alias Klein, who is in custody in Buffalo. Unger was picked off a train in Buffalo, and held in $100,000 bail following the seizure of trunks containing the narcotics.

It was expected other indictments would follow.

The indictment of Unger followed his appearance before the grand jury of Mrs. June Boyd, who was arrested in Chicago with a trunkful of drugs. Mrs. Boyd, a slim of girl blonde, with big blue eyes, testified before the grand jury for 40 minutes.

Unger was indicted on four counts charging and abetting illegal importation of drugs, concealment of narcotics illegal possession and transportation of narcotics, conspiracy.

Believing they were on the verge of breaking open the syndicate which has defied governments of many nations, high officials hurried to New York from Washington to direct the investigation.

U. S. Atty. Tuttle in New York revealed that Col. Nutt, Prohibition Executive Porter and himself had an important conference discussing the international aspects of the "dope ring" evidence. They discussed the effect of these revelations on the national negotiations for the control of the drug traffic and its speed in larger Congressional appropriations for the narcotic bureau.

Assistant U. S. Atty. John W. Blake, directly in charge of the Rothstein drug ring investigation, said today the Government has a closed case against the "higher-ups," in the trust and revelation of names will be startling.

DISINHERITED SCION OF RICH FAMILY DEAD

Norwalk, Ct., Dec. 10 (AP)—Disinherited by his family through elopement and marriage to the daughter of a railway employe, Alton W. Reynolds, 36, scion of the wealthy family identified with the tobacco trade, lost his life Saturday while returning in a skiff from a duck hunting trip.

Herbert Preston, his uncle-in-law, met a similar fate. Alton W. Reynolds, Jr., is suffering from exposure at the hospital after his rescue four hours later from the overturned boat.

While a youth Reynolds was a student at an exclusive school for boys here, and a friendship with Miss Hazel Blosser, a railroad employe's daughter, culminated in their elopement and Reynolds subsequently being disinherited. He became an electrician, building up his own business. Reynolds' mother, Lady McKendrick, later forgave him.

Hampden Probate Register Dies

Springfield, Dec. 10 (AP)—Frank G. Hodskins, 52, for 11 years register of probate of Hampden County and since 1920 general counsel for the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company of this city, died in his home in Longmeadow. He served three terms in the Legislature prior to taking office as probate register.

Woman Fails To Fool Chicago Yegg Men; Get Car and $60

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP)—Mrs. A. L. Rubel of Laporte, Ind., had he rid all about Chicago. So she knew just what to do when two villainous looking men approached the sedan which her husband had just brought to a stop for a traffic signal.

She quickly took her rings and other valuables, worth $500, and dropped them in a door pocket of the car.

The men got $20 from Rubel and $3 from his wife. Mrs. Rubel smiled when she thought of how she had come from Laporte and flim-flammed the Chicago yegg men at their own pastime.

Later, however, she was much chagrined when the robbers ordered her and her husband from the car, got in themselves, and drove away.

URUGUAY ACTS TO HEAD OFF BOLIVIA WAR

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP)—Swinging into action immediately after it convened, the Pan-American Conference on Conciliation and Arbitration today adopted a resolution pledging co-operation in any move toward amicable solution of the Paraguayan-Bolivian border dispute.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Dec. 10 (INS)—While warlike demonstrations against Paraguay continued in Bolivia today, Uruguay took steps for mediation of the territorial dispute to prevent open hostilities. The Uruguayan Foreign Minister suggested to the Mexican, Chilean and Peruvian diplomatic representatives that they offer friendly intervention to settle the dispute which is imperilling the peace of South America. However, the belligerent Bolivian Government has already announced it will reject any mediation offers, claiming "Bolivian sovereignty and honor have been affected by Paraguay's attitude."

It is believed war will be averted and the difficulty solved through intervention by neutral governments.

Asuncion advices state that Paraguay is calm.

Bolivia has sent a note to the South American foreign offices explaining the occurrences of the past few days, notably the clash of Bolivian and Paraguayan troops, and accusing Paraguay of full responsibility for the crisis.

President Hernando Siles of Bolivia has decreed general amnesty for all political exiles, due to the situation.

The Paraguayan minister at La Paz and the Bolivian minister as Asuncion have both departed.

Paraguayan troops in the disputed territory on the Bolivian-Paraguayan frontier were reported today to be occupying block houses from which Bolivian troops were driven last week.

Influential newspapers in Argentina and Uruguay express regret over the warlike situation and express hope of a peaceful solution through friendly intervention.

Former President Eusebio of Paraguay, who has just arrived here, told International News Service he believes Bolivia is responsible for the present crisis.

"The situation, I believe, is due to Bolivia's haste in attaching great importance to the occurrences of the past few days," said the former president. "Similar occurrences have taken place repeatedly owing to the unsettlement of the frontier lsine. I fear the matter will have more serious consequences than the break off in diplomatic relations.

AMERICAS LEAD ALL FOR PEACE, SAYS COOLIDGE

Washington, Dec. 10 (INS)—The Americas led the world as far back at 1822 in undertaking to settle international disputes by peaceful means, President Coolidge told delegates from 20 South and Central American countries, in an address opening the Pan-American conference on arbitration and conciliation here today.

The President spoke in the tropical setting of the Pan-American union building here, dedicated to maintenance of friendly relations among the nations making up the Americas.

Argentina, only one of the Latin-American Republics not to send a delegation, decided at the last moment not to participate. Both Bolivia and Paraguay sent representatives.

After the inaugural speech by President Coolidge, it had been arranged to lose no time in organizing the conference and making committee assignments.

President Coolidge said:

"It is to no ordinary occasion that I am privileged as President of the United States to bid you welcome.

"It is an effort to raise humanity to a higher level of existence, where nations may dwell together in peace and harmony according to the principles of liberty and equality under the fostering influence of justice and equity.

"It is impossible to conceive of a more inspiring motive for an international conference. Here is no shadow of past conflict and no thought of future conquest.

"From the earliest period of their independent existence the Americas have held an advanced position in their advocacy of the orderly settlement of international disputes. The world has had no more devoted adherents to the principle of arbitration.

"The treaties of 1822 of Greater Colombia with Peru and with Chile, of 1823 with Mexico, and of 1825 with Central America, set new standards in the conduct of international relations.

FIRST PAN-AMERICAN

"It is a notable and significant fact that at the first conference of a Pan-American character, at Panama in 1826, a treaty was signed which declared:

"The contracting parties solemnly obligate and bind themselves amicably to compromise among themselves all differences now existing or which may arise in the future, and in case no settlement can be reached between the disagreeing powers the question shall be taken for settlement to the judgment of the assembly, whose decision shall, however, not be obligatory unless said powers shall have expressly agreed that it shall be."

"History clearly asserts that at this early period the republics of America made both conciliation and arbitration integral parts of their national policy.

"The Congress of Lima of 1847 established the principle that all differences that may arise between two or more of the American republics shall be settled without recourse to force.

LATEST AT HABANA

"Declarations of a similar nature were made at the Congress of Santiago of 1856, the Congress of Lima of 1864, the Congress of Caracas of 1883, and at the series of international conferences of American States beginning with the Conference of Washington in 1889, and including the recent conference at Habana in January of the present year.

"Nor has the United States been remiss in the futherance of these great principles. As early as 1794 in a treaty with Great Britain, usually referred to as the 'Jay treaty,' it became the privilege of this government to introduce into modern diplomacy the principle of arbitration, and throughout the period of nearly a century and a half which has elapsed since that time we have supported our sister republics in upholding this great cause.

"Some of the countries here represented have added further strength to the principle of arbitration by making it a fundamental tenet of their political constitutions.

FIXED PRINCIPLE.

"Among these are Venezuela, Ecuador, the Dominican republic, Brazil and Uruguay, who have set an example by raising the arbitration of international disputes to the dignity of a mandatory constitutional principle.

"The great value of the plan for arbitration lies in the fact that it both furnishes knowledge and assurance that differences will be adjusted and also adjusts them.

"This has a very large influence on the public temper. Nations do not explode all at once without any previous warning and begin to attack each other.

"Slowly but surely modern thought is bringing the different nations of the world to corresponding standards. Governments are coming to see that it is by no means in derogation of their dignity to submit their differences with each other to the decision of an impartial tribunal.

"These present prospects and these inspiring records of the past place upon us of this generation a heavy responsibility. We must not only maintain the traditional policy established by the founders of our republics, but we must also carry the procedure of conciliation and arbitration to a new and higher sphere.

HOPES FOR FUTURE

"The world has the right to expect that the mission so broken by the early statesmen of this continent shall be carried to completion. Our history, our national ideals and the standards of our international intercourse make this a solemn obligation.

"It is with an abiding faith in the mission of Pan America as the standard bearer of peace and good will that I wish you the fullest measure of success in the discharge of the important duties that have been entrusted to your keeping."

Gangsters Slay Another

Chicago, Dec. 10 (INS)—Another gangster murder in Chicago Heights, suburban haven of Chicago bootleggers, was discovered at dawn today. The body of an unidentified man, shot four times through the head and neck, was found at a street intersection in the gang-ruled suburb.

Shopping with Priscilla Price

Dearest Anne:

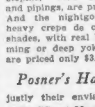
My, but I've been busy, and it has been such fun. I have been prodded and jostled by the cheeriest Christmas shoppers—all bent on the same purpose—to select the gift that will express their own thoughtfulness and love—and of course—at the most agreeable prices. There are so many new things to see this year, Anne—and so many old favorites in new styles—that I hardly know where to begin.

First Of All

let me tell you about the captivating array of silken underthings I saw at Mangel's, 449 Washington St. And the prices! Just imagine an alluring black lace dance set for only $2.98. Sets of lacy crepe de chine; scalloped trimmed models, and combination stepins, too, are also included at this price. A delightful heavenly blue one with lace inserts for Carol. Those delightful new crepe de chine "Shorts," and rainbow-colored stepins, with lace, appliques and pipings, are priced only $1.98. And the nightgowns! Beautiful heavy crepe de chine in pastel shades, with real Irish lace trimming or deep yokes of Alencon are priced only $3.98!

Posner's Has Earned

justly their enviable reputation as the "Great Men's Store Where Women Like to Shop." Anne. They never fail in courtesy and excellent service to their women shoppers. You will find just the correct and appropriate gift in their varied stock of Christmas Gifts for men. A marvelous "Beacon" Blanket Lounging Robe is priced at only $8.95 (slippers to match, 75c.) It has a shawl collar, soutache trimmings, and comes in smart colors and combinations of the most desirable patterns. For the lounging hours of the well-dressed man, there is a beautiful brocaded robe, in harmonious shades, perfectly tailored, for only 9.75 (slippers to match, 75c.) Posner's three stores are located at 128 Tremont St., Room 602. Her treatment is painless, and permanent, and she cordially extends to you her personal consultation free of charge. Tel. Hanover 7202.

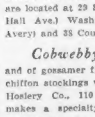


Cobwebby Sheer

and of gossamer fineness are the chiffon stockings which San Fan Hosiery Co., 110 Tremont St., makes a specialty of at $1.49. They are beautiful quality, all silk, perfectly shaped and have the new French garter guard, picot top, and narrow slipper heel. A desirable weight for colder weather is the extra heavy service, priced at $1.39. For $1.89 there is an extremely fine quality semi-service. The San Fan Hosiery surely offers "the best for less" in their silk from top to toe chiffon stocking, priced $1.00 and a service weight with lisle garter top at the same price. All their stockings are packed for gift-giving.

Gifts For The Home

Whether they are for the charming housewife, or the little bride-to-be, gifts of linen or lace are always cherished. Lepie's, at 54 Chauncy St., offers something unusual in regular $5.50 Quaker Lace curtains, for only $4.25. Their gorgeous array of billowy silk pillows, in bright, cheery tones, are priced only $1.49, and come in bolster, round and ruffled heart shapes. An all wool puff, with silk border and rayon center, to match your bedroom color scheme is specially priced at $8.25 for holiday buying. Gleaming taffeta spreads and pillows, specially priced $26.50. Martex Towels, linen bridge sets and handkerchiefs at reasonable prices. It pays to buy at Lepie's.



Millinery Bargains

Why not give a smart, new hat for a Christmas Gift? I am sure it would be heartily appreciated. Bennett's Wholesale Millinery, 127 Tremont St. (6th floor) is offering an amazing sale of manufacturers' sample hats at only $2. Truly, they are astonishing values. Close-fitting velvet toques, brightly trimmed with gleaming opalescent; pert little felts and satins for both the well-dressed matron and her winning daughter. You know you are getting the best of material and style when you buy a sample hat. And for actually only 38 cents you can buy a $3 or $4 felt hat in any of the new styles and shades at Bennett's Wholesale Millinery, H. S. Bennett, 127 Tremont St., sixth floor.

"I Simply Can't afford to grow old—a youthful appearance means so much in business," says the extremely successful proprietress of a popular Smart Shop. "So when I find my hair beginning to fade, and silvery streaks appearing, I immediately send for a bottle of Ann J. McHale's Hair Color Restorer, and in no time my hair began to recover its lost color." You see, this preparation is not a dye, but a color restorer, for either blonde or brunette, which stimulates and invigorates the roots of the hair from which the color emanates—re-creating from the roots to the very tip end. It is sold at G. S. Cheney Co., 15 Union St., for $1.00 a bottle.

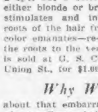
about that embarrassing growth of superfluous hair about your lips and chin when a treatment with Miss Elizabeth G. Sparkes, electric needle specialist, will not only free you of it forever, but also your complexion. Remember Paula? Forever powder ing, but the little hair could never be covered up. She has had a treatment with Miss Sparkes and now her skin positively radiates with unblemished clarity. Miss Sparkes is located at 126 Tremont St., Room 602. Her treatment is painless, and permanent, and she cordially extends to you her personal consultation free of charge. Tel.

Special Hat Sale $2.95-$3.95-$4.95

For the benefit of Christmas shoppers, LOTTY'S Hat Shoppe, fifth floor, 8 Winter St., is continuing their sale of stunning hats originally priced as high as $15. Included in this sale are a number of new winter models just arrived from New York. The new style soleil and French felts, with cut-away front and long back, are vastly becoming above a richly furred collar. There are also some new velvets, satins and gleaming metallics in large and small headsizes. Hats modeled to the head and old hats remodeled in your own particular style at a very moderate price. Lotty's Hat Shoppe also has a splendid assortment of hats for Southern wear and remains open every evening until 6:30. Han. 7502.



I Don't Know

of a shop in town where you can have your fur coat remodeled at prices that equal Parker Bros., 110 Tremont St. You will scarcely believe that such wonders could be worked upon your old fur coat at their amazingly low prices. Ordinarily you'd expect to pay anywhere from $80 to $100 to have a fur coat remade, including new lining, but Fitts had here done at Parker's at a saving of about $35. When you have a long list of Christmas gifts to buy a saving like this is surely appreciated. Being a modern girl, Rita decided to reward herself for this cost economy, and bought two of Parker's stunning dresses, regular $12.50 values for $15.

The Lamp-Lit Hour

When your day is done and you are free to snuggle down into that favorite armchair of yours to read the news or the latest book, think how you will enjoy the mellow glow of a friendly lamp—one that can be adjusted to just the proper height. Spaulding Moss Co., 42 Franklin St., have built into one corner of their store an attractive little lamp shop, and it was here that I saw a beautiful Colonial Bridge Lamp of wrought iron, with an adjustable hand-painted paper parchment shade, priced at only $6.00 complete. What a welcome, lasting gift. There are all sorts of odd lamps in this interesting shop, especially the quaint little glass lamp, a reproduction of the old-fashioned oil lamps, which is priced at $3.50. And by the way, there is something new in lamp shades that I am sure you haven't seen. It is a mica and cellophine combination and is sure to become very popular. This is positively the last week for personal engraved cards. So if you are planning to have your name formally engraved upon your "Merry Christmas" better drop into Spaulding Moss Co. before Saturday and select one of their most interesting assortments of cheery cards. While you are there, just take a peek at their $1.00 gift shelf. You will be thrilled at smart and useful gift novelties you will find there.

Christmastime in the Spanish Galleries

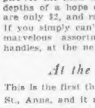
I have a welcome bit of news for you, Anne. Chandler & Co. have set aside a special section in the Spanish Galleries devoted to gifts at unusual values, and a bewitching array of lustrous silk underthings now greets you as you descend the red carpeted stairway. Jean's name has been checked off my list with a lingerous black satin negligee, priced only $16.50. It is bright embroidered with huge flowers and has a sleeky, swaying fringe. This same style in silk crepe, without the fringe, is priced $7.50. Shimmering rayon negligees in entrancing rainbow shades are priced $10.50. Cosy corduroy robes, either embossed or plain, in warmth giving colors, are priced $5.50. That problem of giving a gift of equal value to your bridge partners or office friends will be easily solved by the dainty crepe de chine dance sets in pastel shades, price $2; or silk nightgowns, with deep lace yokes, priced $3. A lovely petalled nightgown to match a petalled dance set would make a most practical "group" gift for the little lady who is tucking things away into the scented depths of a hope chest. Novelty rayon bloomers, in tan or flesh, are only $2, and rayon pajamas, with gay print trimmings, are $3. If you simply can't give Beth "undies" again this year, there is a marvelous assortment of colored silk umbrellas, with artistic handles, at the next counter, priced only $5.50.

At the Sign of the Spotted Leopard

This is the first thing that catches my eye as I walk down Summer St., Anne, and it never fails to fascinate. You must have seen it, too—that tawney-skinned animal in electric lights, endlessly climbing a tree trunk—right in to Scott Furriers, New England's Largest Fur Establishment. It is a beacon that has guided many satisfied buyers of furcoats to a reliable establishment where fair dealing and generous terms are the watchwords. If you are a lucky person who is going to receive a fur coat as a Christmas gift, Scott Furriers, Inc., 89 Summer St., have an enormous stock of fur coats ranging in price from $50 to $795 which includes only the finest pelts, from swanky tomboy styles to the more luxurious wraps. If that long-planned Christmas Club check has just arrived, you will find it a happy investment if you deposit part of it as first payment on one of their smartly-styled coats. Scott's three economical purchasing plans bring fur coats within the reach of everyone. (1) You may pay cash. (2) You may open a 30-60-90-day charge account, or (3) You may join Scott's Unique Fur Club and make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing the coat. Scott Furriers will make a generous allowance on your old fur coat, and make no charge for alterations on a new one. Could anything be more liberal? Scott's remains open every evening until 9 p. m. and is located at 89 Summer St., Boston, and 51 Pratt St., Hartford.

We're the Greatest o' Pals

this Christmas "Giftie" and I, and as we entered Filene's today it assured me that the gift dearest—and nearest—a modern girl's heart is dainty, silky "undies." So I stepped right up to the Glove Silk Underwear Section, and found the most alluring array of lovely silky things, all designed on the new idea of elimination. That is, elimination of bulky layers of folds, bands and straps. The new one-piece pantie combination fits like a glove and aside from being a distinctingly lovely thing—all pink, and ribbons and primrose allures, is most practical. It combines the three undergarments ordinarily worn—brassiere, vest and French pantie—in one piece. Just one form-fitting layer of excellent quality glove silk—and one set of shoulder ribbons. Isn't that delightful? Think how sleek and svelte your frocks will fit over this foundation—and what a saving of laundry! Only one garment to wash instead of three, $7.59. The popular new short "Briefs"—priced $3—fashioned like those of a dancer, will delight the gay youngling whose scanty skirts are apt to reveal an occasional glimpse of knicker. To complete this "undie" ensemble there is a new glove silk bandeau, soft and firm, with the new belt binding to hold it securely in place, priced $1. Be sure you add this Glove Silk Underwear Section of Filene's to your list for gift shopping. Anne.

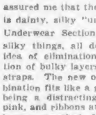


Bits o' Loveliness

Oh, Anne, if you want to buy some adorable undies for gift-giving—alluring black georgette chemises with intriguing lace bodice and inserts for only $4.59—and chemises in fairy-like pastel colors nestling tiny rosebuds $2.95—or—dainty georgette stepins, lace and beribboned for $1.98 then be sure you visit the Gay Silk Underwear Shop, Rm. 76, 41 Winter St. All their underwear is hand made, and they have an enticing array of pajama ensembles and negligees. Their first quality pure silk sheer chiffon stockings at $1 are perfectly shaped to insure trim ankles. Imported bridal veils, fashioned to the head, are priced $7.50 up.

The "Flapper"

A girl of the period with intelligence and freedom, full of enthusiasm, rejoicing in her youth, and the opportunity to keep her skin free of all blemishes—a mode in pink, with the glow of health and beauty. Even hair scanty clothing, science says, admits the sun's rays and builds up stronger bodies. Dr. John Post's Scientific "Absorption"—secret of Facial Rejuvenation co-operates with nature in giving new youth and beauty while you sleep. Call Mrs. Gardner, Mgr. Facial and Medical Depts., Hay. 1647, for appointment. $5.00 facial demonstration for $2. Post Institute, 6 Beacon St., Room 910.



Holiday Frock Sale

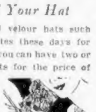
Of course you will want to look your prettiest when you gather 'round the Christmas Tree. So Allyn's Dress Shop, 41 Winter St. (fifth floor) is having a timely sale of their stunning frocks marked down from $16.50 and $19.50 to $13.75. This group includes swirling flared models, smartly tailored ones, and some new ensembles. The materials—crepes, satins, georgettes, chiffons and novelty tweeds come in all the brilliant new shades—Lelong Blue, Firebrand Red, Peachblow and black. Allyn's dresses are all one-of-a-kind and stand out in their distinctiveness. This is really a remarkable sale, and there are others formerly priced as high as $29.50, now $22.50.

Remold Your Hat

With felt and velour hats such popular favorites these days for all occasions, you can have two or even three hats for the price of one by having last year's felts and velours, now uselessly packed away in your hat box, remolded by Miss Wilcomb, 20 West St., Rm. 608, for only $3.50. This includes cleaning. Miss Wilcomb extends the very same "molded to the head" service on your old felt hat that you would get on a new one. And think of the saving! I saw some of new hats remolded in up-to-the-minute styles that I really couldn't tell from new ones. So just bring your hat problems with Miss Wilcomb. She'll solve them. Tel. Cap. 7172.

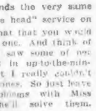
Sweet Dreams

of a lovely garden greeted me as I stepped into Wethern's, 24 Temple Place, today, to buy a shoulder bouquet for holiday giving. Their imported artificial flowers are the most realistic that I have seen, and they are priced at only $1. There are rapturous little Jack Roses surrounded by wood violets; stately orchids, white or colored, with tinkly lilies-of-the-valley and feathery maidenhair. And Heliotrope! That fragrant old-fashioned flower now comes in enchanting nosegays with the exquisite gardenia. Gorgeous American Beauties nestle in a bed of sweet mignonette, and many others. They all come packed in a gold-covered flower box, and are wonderful values at $1.00.



So Different!

So suave, and so becoming! "Your hat can make or mar your Christmas," says Jean, who was wearing the most bewitching hat which he had made by the Simon Sisters, 41 Winter St., Room 87. They are offering some special values for holiday wearing. In modeled to the head hats of slinky duvetyn, soleil and French felts. They are fashioned with the fetching irregular brims in plain and striking color contrasts, and are priced at $7.50 up. Their handmade, ready-to-wear hats—distinctive models are rare values at $5. The Simon Sisters also have branches at 1461 Dorchester Ave., Fields Corner, and 503 Washington St., Codman Sq.



So now, my dear, you can see what I have been doing—and I am really quite proud because most of the names on my list have a black check mark that means "There, that's done!" I really don't know which part of the shops I like the best—the inside with their pungent evergreens decorations—twinkly stars and masses of holly red—or the outside with windows displaying the most alluring gift suggestions—and the toys. It is really a wonder that I get anywhere at all when I see those toy windows. I love to hear the darling girl-kid dies crowing with delight at the roly-poly dolls that look so much like their own dear little selves. And the little boys—most of them too dignified to express their longings—for how can a grown-up understand one's interest in that company of staunch tin soldiers. But in the end—the shops always find me—inside—for that's where the values are. Just let me know if I can do anything for you this week, Anne, as I am always will surely please Mr. Hard-to-please and I know there are many practical and good-looking gifts in the Leather Goods Department of Jordan Marsh Company (street floor annex) that he will declare "most useful." The fitted case, for instance, with toilet articles, is a splendid gift for a traveling man, and they range in price from $15 up. The compact, varied-colored enamel cup set in a leather case, priced at $10, is sure to be appreciated. There are gifts for Mlady as well. Leather jewel cases, with sectional tray, priced $5 up. Imported bottle cases to carry her favorite perfumes or toilet water are priced at $10.

Your devoted,

Priscilla.

Gifts of Leather

You Really Deserve

a new dress out of your precious Christmas Club check if you have been faithful to it all year long. EVELYN'S Dress Shop, 8 Winter St., is having a pre-holiday sale, and you know what that means—the very latest at the very lowest prices. Smart new winter prints and darling chiffons and georgettes with detachable sleeves or cocktail jacket styles, in the flattering new flower shades, are priced at only $13.75.

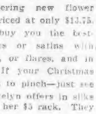
$8.75 will buy you the best-looking crepes or satins with pleats, fichus, or flares, and in all colors. If your Christmas budget begins to pinch—just see what Miss Evelyn offers in silks and wools on her $5 rack. They are marvelous.

Do Twinkling Lights

dance in and about your hair, and does it glisten and gleam with all the sheen of the sunlight? Do your friends admire and envy it, and say "What bright, glorious hair you have, my dear?" They will, if you use "Flozor," that magic hair brightener, after each shampoo. "Flozor," prepared by J. Lesquendieu and sold exclusively by Meyer Jonason Co., is not a dye nor a bleach. It imparts equal splendor and brilliance to both blonde or brunette, and is priced at $2.50 large size, $1.50 small size. A particular fine shampoo to use before "Flozor" is one also prepared by J. Lesquendieu and priced 25 cents a package.

A Treasure Chest

of brown leather, with a gleaming gold satin lining nestling a wondrous pair—or two—of shoe buckles, is going to make some lucky girl gasp with delight if the "Perplexed" young man takes my advice and does his gift-buying at Thayer McNeil Co., 47 Temple Pl. Their gorgeous assortment of shoe buckles is unsurpassed, and I gazed breathless with admiration at the enchanting array of sparkling rhinestone buckles priced $4 and up. Twinkly cut steel buckles of imported make, each stone a perfect cut, are $5 and up. Tiny side buckles are priced $2 and up. Glistening rhinestones to add a dash of piquancy for evening wear are priced at $10 up.



BROTHER OF BOY SLAYER BACKS CONFESSION

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 10 (INS)—Verification of Peter Kudzinowski's story that he killed Harry Quinn, a miner, in Scranton, Pa., in March, 1924, was obtained here today from the slayer's brother, Frank Rogers, of Scranton. Kudzinowski was brought back to Jersey City from Detroit, after he confessed to the murder of seven-year-old Joe Stanelli of New York, November 17.

Rogers said his brother told him of Quinn's death, and that he had given him money to flee to New York. Rogers added that he had withheld the news from the police because he feared for Kudzinowski's safety, police said.

Detectives left for Scranton to question Kudzinowski's mother, Mrs. Veronika Kudzinowski, to whom he is supposed to have confessed the two crimes.

Kudzinowski, according to the police, said that he had told his mother of killing Joey Storelli.

Kudzinowski was formally arraigned on the charge of killing the Storelli boy today, but the hearing was adjourned for 72 hours in order to allow the police to continue their checkup of his story.

SENATE BATTLE OVER BOULDER DAM RESUMED

Washington, Dec. 10 (Universal)—Boulder Dam's battle in the Senate was to be resumed today, and despite all rumbles of a possible compromise, will be waged to a finish to get the measure to a vote.

There was the attitude of Senator William Johnson (R.) of California, who is championing the fight for the measure and the senators who are supporting him in the raging debate.

The possibility that a compromise may be reached between California and Arizona in their Boulder Dam demands will not alter the aggressive drive now fairly started to pass the measure at this session of Congress.

There were a number of informal conferences over the weekend, but the situation was unchanged. Actual agreement in the many points at issue between California and Arizona as to water allocation, generation of power, distribution of power, revenues to Arizona and other details remain to be worked out.

By the end of this week, it is believed, the situation will be clearly outlined—either a fight to a finish or a compromise.

Senator Bratton (D.) of New Mexico is hopeful that a compromise can be reached. During the week's debate now ended, Bratton assumed the role of "peacemaker," joining frequently in the discussion and urging both California and Arizona to adopt a conciliatory attitude.

Meanwhile Senator Johnson expressed himself as well satisfied with the progress of the dramatic struggle to make the colossal Boulder Dam project on the Lower Colorado river a reality.

Constructive debate has marked the discussion, Thus far it has been shown that Boulder Dam is feasible, that the great concrete dam 550 feet high can safely be built across Black Canyon, that it will solve the flood control problem and generate electric power sufficient to pay for the entire cost.

Moreover, California and Arizona are but 400,000 acre feet apart in the controversy over allocation of the Colorado river waters.

California claims 4,600,000 acre feet of water a year as her share for irrigation purposes. Arizona is willing to agree to permit California 4,200,000 acre feet.

There is a disposition also among the majority of the Senate to speed matters so that legislation can be enacted to grant flood protection to the 85,000 people of the imperial valley of lower California and Arizona in constant danger of a flood which would cause heavy loss of life and incalculable destruction.

Boulder Dam would remove the flood menace. In addition it would impound the waters for irrigation of millions of acres of land and generate power for the industrial development of the entire southwest.

Sells His Car for $1 Because It Won't Go

New Haven, Dec. 10 (AP)—Louis White, manager of a gasoline filling station, owns a roadster today because of yesterday's cold weather. It happened this way: Joseph Borg of Woronoco, Mass., stopped for gas. He paid for the gas and stepped on the starter. Nothing happened. He stepped harder and still nothing happened. In disgust he offered to sell the car, for a dollar. White had a dollar.

Liggett Silent on Postmastership

National Republican Committeeman Louis K. Liggett returned to Boston from Washington today and refused to deny or confirm the report that he had recommended Charles E. Gow of Boston for the Boston postmastership. Liggett had been in conference with President Coolidge.

"I have nothing to say now," was his only answer to inquiries.

South Quincy Has Case of Diphtheria

Quincy's first case of diphtheria in five months was reported today. The victim is a 13-year-old school boy who lives in South Quincy. His name was withheld by the health authorities. His mother had refused to let him take the Schick test with his classmates, city health authorities declared.

Queen Mary's Dog Picks Own Christmas Gift

London (AP)—Notwithstanding the King's Illness Queen Mary has shopped extensively for Christmas. She did it early, before her husband's condition became serious.

Up to the day of the King's illness, she could be seen almost daily in the West End shops and has also patronized many charity bazaars in search of presents for her family and friends. She loves to visit the shops, to choose gifts for her three little grandchildren.

The Queen of Spain and the Queen of Norway also have shopped here, probing elbows with crowds of other women.

Queen Mary and the Queen of Spain chanced to meet in the silk department of a large store. They continued their tour together, Queen Mary always prefixing each purchase with the query, "Is this empire-made?"

Lest she should forget what he wanted, Queen Mary's favorite little dog who accompanies her on many shopping tours, chose his own gift by curling up in a comfortable dog-basket displayed in a department through which the mistress was passing, and refusing to budge until the Queen unglingly bought him the basket.

ACTRESS LEFT A SUICIDE NOTE TO FRIEND

In Maple st., that city, is on her way here in response to a telegram which informed her merely that her daughter was "ill and in a coma."

When the mother reaches here she will learn for the first time that Dorothy is dead. The girl was to have received a visit from her mother at Christmas. She left a note for her in a sealed envelope before she turned on the gas.

Dorothy Kendall was known to more chorus girls than any other figure in the stage realm. Especially by those "down at the heels." As secretary of the Chorus Girls' Equity League she was their hope. She registered those out of work and "placed" them when she could.

Repeatedly asked if there was a future for the "small town girl" on the stage, she had but one answer—"stay at home—the city will get you—there are plenty of experienced chorus girls hunting jobs."

And "Dot" Kendall ought to have known whereof she spoke, for she had been connected with theatres for a dozen years. She started as box-office girl in a Manchester theatre.

At the age of 16 she married Harry J. Ullock, a Manchester theatrical man, but she kept it secret for four years before making a frank announcement of the ceremony.

Subsequently she left Manchester with her husband and went to Vermont and from there to the Pacific coast, returning without him and "settling down" at 200 West Forty-ninth st.—in the heart of the "roaring forties."

Her friends say she was planning to seek a divorce and remarry. They say her intended second husband was a theatrical man, also. She had been known as Dorothy Kendall, not Mrs. Ullock, to her associates.

BOY KILLS LAD AT SCHOOL ON A DARE TO SHOOT

Dracut, Dec. 10—John Anglin, 16-year-old Lowell high school student, today shot and killed one boy and slightly wounded another when, on a dare at the Kenwood school, he fired a shotgun he claimed to believe was unloaded.

Free Fradley, 14, of Merrimac ave., was killed, and Henry Poubinski, 15 of Vernum ave., both Dracut, was wounded in the right arm, the former receiving almost the full charge of a 10-gauge shotgun shell in the body.

Dr. Ainsworth V. Isherwood, school physician was called and after pronouncing Bradley dead, ordered Poubinski removed to the Lowell Corporation Hospital where his condition was not regarded as serious.

Chief of Police William A. Cassidy of Dracut arrested Anglin on a charge of manslaughter and the boy was held in $2000.

According to the police, Anglin, who lives in Perry st., this town, determined to go hunting as there was no school at the Lowell high school today. He told police he took the single-barrel shotgun and four shells and went to the Kenwood school to wait for a companion, firing one of the shells on the way. The boy said he had three other shells in his pocket and so was confident the shotgun was not loaded.

While waiting at the school Anglin said he was approached by several other boys, including Bradley and Poubinski, and joked with them for awhile. Eventually, according to his story, Bradley ran from the school toward the portable school building a short distance away, shouting: "I bet you can't hit me."

Anglin said he carelessly raised his gun to his shoulder, and believing it harmless, pulled the trigger. Bradley fell, his head, chest and stomach peppered with shots, while a few stray shot struck young Poubinski in the arm.

12 Autos Burned in $25,000 Garage Fire

Springfield, Dec. 10 (AP)—Twelve cars were destroyed when fire, originating in a small automobile, swept the public garage owned by Joseph Roberts here today, causing loss estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000.

Clean Max, a workman, suffered minor burns.

WIFE FAINTS AS HUSBAND IS TOLD OF RAID

There was a startled gasp and Mrs. West fell back in her chair, unconscious.

Court was immediately suspended and she was carried to a retiring room, where a physician, summoned by Atty. Leon R. Eyges, defense counsel, worked over Mrs. West for some time, eventually bringing her back to consciousness.

West, who lives with his wife on Wellington rd., but whose office is in Manchester, took the stand for his wife when the trial was resumed before Judge Edward T. Broadhurst and a jury.

The witness told he first met Mrs. Franklin when she went to his office and introduced herself.

"Do you know your wife is going out with my husband?" he quoted her as asking.

"I replied: 'No,' " the witness testified.

She said: "Well, she is." I said: 'I don't believe there is anything to that.'

She said: "Come down to Medford and I'll show you. We will find them both at your house, drunk.'

MET WIFE IN HALL

"We left Manchester in my car at about 2:45 and drove to Medford, arriving at my home around 4:30. I opened the door and as I walked in I met my wife in the hall.

"I told her I had Mrs. Franklin with me and that she wanted to talk. We went into the living room and my wife sat down on one end of the couch and Mrs. Franklin on the other. Mrs. Franklin said to my wife, 'Where is my husband?'

"My wife replied, 'I don't know anything about your husband.'

"Mrs. Franklin then called my wife names and said: 'Yes you do. He's been going with you, he's been drunk, he's been giving you money, and I want him.'

"Mrs. West said: 'I know a Mr. Franklin, but I don't know him as your husband.'

"Then Mrs. Franklin became excited and called my wife names. My wife said, 'I have no interest in your husband.'

In response to questions, the witness said nothing was discussed with reference to Franklin being seen running out of the back door of the house and across the lawn.

CO-RESPONDENT NAMED

He said that afterward Mrs. Franklin called him several times at his Manchester office, and one night at home she arrived at the house.

"I was just finishing whoing dishes in the kitchen when I heard a commotion in the hall. I went out and Mrs. Franklin was there. She began to call my wife vile names and I ordered her out. I haven't seen her since except in court."

Under direct examination West said he had been married 25 or 26 years, and that he did not believe the charges made by Mrs. Franklin. He said he went to Medford with her because, like all other men, I was willing to be shown.

"I was convinced after the incident at the house that the charges were all wrong. She said we would find her husband and my wife drunk together in the house, and they were not."

It was then that Atty. O'Connor asked West if he knew about the Huntington ave. raid, and the witness' wife collapsed.

Dressing Is Novel

THERE is much truth in the paraphrased adage that "a salad a day keeps the doctor away." And you need never worry about your family's tiring of salads if you will vary the dressing. With two or three jars of a favorite mayonnaise in the ice box, it is easy to do this with the everyday ingredients we find in almost any pantry.

With highly flavored salads, I prefer to serve my mayonnaise just as it comes from the jar. With mild salad, I give it zip and zest by adding spicy or pickled ingredients. For instance, a delicious Chiffonade Dressing is made by adding to 1 c. of mayonnaise 2 tbsps. of chopped parsley, 2 tbsps. of chopped pepper, 1 tbsp. of chopped pimento, 1 scant onion chopped fine and enough paprika to make the dressing quite red.

Perfect Dressing is made by adding 1 hard cooked and chopped egg yolk, 1 tsp. of vinegar and 1 tsp. of chili sauce to 1 c. of mayonnaise. A dressing popular in New York is made by mixing together ½ grated onion, 1 tbsp. of chopped chives (these can be omitted if necessary), 1 tbsp. chopped parsley and adding this to 1½ c. mayonnaise.

For fish dishes, a quick Tartar Sauce is prepared from 2 tbsps. of chopped capers, 2 tbsps. cucumber pickles chopped, 2 tbsps. chopped chives, 1 tsp. chopped parsley, 1 tsp. grated onion and 2 c. mayonnaise.

To serve hot on asparagus, cold broccoli, or broiled fish a hot Mayonnaise, which is really a Mock Hollandaise, is quickly and easily prepared. For this make ½ c. of hot white sauce by your favorite recipe (proportions of 1 tbsp. of butter, 1 tbsp. of flour and 1 c. milk) and add to this 1 tbsp. lemon juice and 2-3 c. mayonnaise.

Indian Dressing is prepared by adding ½ c. chili sauce and ½ c. of heavy whipped cream to ½ c. of mayonnaise dressing. Another zippy dressing and one that's extremely easy is prepared from 1 c. of mayonnaise, 1 tbsp. chili sauce or catsup and ½ tsp. salt.

For fruit salads, Honey Dressing is delicious and is made simply by adding 2 tbsps. of strained honey to 1 c. of mayonnaise. A fluffy dressing is prepared from 1 egg white beaten dry, added to 1 c. of mayonnaise and a ½ pint Dressing from 3 to 6 tbsps. of heavy whipped cream mixed evenly with 1 c. of mayonnaise.

A delicious Ginger Dressing is produced from 1 c. of mayonnaise and 1 tbsp. of preserved ginger, chopped. A little of the ginger syrup can be used if a thinner dressing is desired.

Who would bother with homemade mayonnaise when you can purchase a dressing so much smoother and so much better flavored than the home-made variety, at less expense? This dressing is popular with housewives all over New England.

They choose it for its delicious home-made flavor, its wonderful freshness, its unfailing smoothness, as well as for its economy.

Chef Will Teach

A MAN who is master of the art of cookery, a man who served his apprenticeship with a prince of the realm, will take charge of the class in Practical Cookery in the Martha Lee Kitchen next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

This is Angelon di Matteo, for some years chef of the Hotel Arlington.

Having served his apprenticeship, Mr. Di Matteo was connected with the Hotel Vesuvio in Italy and later with the famous Savoy of London, and also the Hotel Victoria in the same city. In 1906 he came to America, to the Union League of Philadelphia and later went to the Walton Hotel. For eight years he was chief of the Copley Square Hotel and later of the Westminster.

The steadily increasing popularity of the Hotel Arlington is attributed in no small degree to his excellent cuisine, supervised and originated by Mr. Di Matteo.

Among the Arlington specialties prepared by Wednesday will be Antipasto a la Italiana, Baked Oysters Delfie, Fillet Mignon a la d'Algiacourt, Broccoli Milanaise and a variety of salads—all dishes which can be readily reproduced by the average housewife. Please take this as your personal invitation to be present with a friend.

SAYS MURDER WAS 'JOKE'

Sheridan, Mich., Dec. 10 (AP)—An age-old school prank—throwing paper wads—led to the slaying near here last Friday of Miss Flossie Carter, 29 year-old Sheridan school teacher, state police announced today.

Jimmy Deakin, 15-year-old eighth grade student, who police said confessed today that he choked Miss Carter into unconsciousness and then beat her to death with a rock, said he killed her because she cuffed him for throwing paper wads.

The paper wad incident, according to the alleged confession took place three years ago.

In substance the confession, as announced by Capt. Fred Armstrong of the State police, was that on Friday evening after school Miss Carter offered to give Deakin, son of the school janitor, a ride home. She was driving to her home in Sidney. Seizing the opportunity to "get even" Deakin accepted the ride.

When she stopped the car to let him out on an unfrequented road a mile from Sheridan, Deakin, who is large for his age, seized her and choked her into unconsciousness. Then he picked up a large rock and beat her to death.

7 DEAD; SCORES HURT; BIG LOSS BY STORM

criticizing the manner in which the streets were being cleaned.

"I am entirely dissatisfied with the situation," he declared. "The streets are not as I want to see them. The work of snow removal is not anywhere near the average good job the city can do with its new snow removing machinery. I am decidedly out of temper because of the work, and those in charge know exactly how I feel.

"I will admit, however, there is some excuse perhaps, such as traffic conditions. (He pointed out the window to Province st., where lines of parked automobiles were visible.)

"Even in the suburban sections, however, snow removal was not up to standard. In my own section conditions were not as they should be. I guarantee to have the streets clean tomorrow provided no more snow falls.

"Another obstacle was the act that the Civil Service Commission refused to confirm George Foss, whom I nominated for the position of deputy public works commissioner to succeed the late Edward W. Murphy. He is a man eminently fitted to take care of now removal, but because he is not an engineer the Civil Service Commission refused to certify him, regardless of the fact that he spent 30 years in the city service.

"I simply can't understand it. That's the kind of treatment the city gets every day from the Civil Service Commission."

Leaving behind a toll of seven deaths, several injured persons and disruption of trolley and railroad schedules, the storm which lashed New England coast for 48 hours passed north before noon.

The storm's dead were:

Virginia Tolosa, 10, of 3 North ct., Salem, killed while coasting in Salem.

Joseph McNeal, 28, of 370 East Broadway, So. Boston, killed by a locomotive during the snowstorm.

Frederick Hubbard, So. Deerfield, dead at the Farren Hospital in that town, victim of a coasting tragedy.

George Brogan, 9, Main st., Charlestown, fatally hurt while coasting near his home.

C. W. Maxson, chief boatswain's mate, U. S. N., fatally injured when his auto skidded and hit a tree at Topsfield.

Henry Habermeil, 46, of Worcester, dead of exertion of fighting his way through the storm to reach the house of a relative in Worcester.

KING GAINS, BUT IS STILL IN DANGER

This does not mean an eventuality must necessarily be expected, but it does mean it is distinctly possible.

Use of the word "anxiety" in today's bulletin was interpreted as a distinct warning that a grave condition existed. The royal physicians, it is felt, would never employ such phraseology except in an emergency.

Whether the King's physicians have real hopes of His Majesty's recovery is not known. In accordance with custom they are resisting their views to themselves, those immediately connected with the royal family and the government. Even the officials of Buckingham Palace today were reluctant to discuss any phase of the situation.

The morning bulletin read:

"Although the King has passed a disturbed night, there has been some fall in temperature this morning and there also is a slight improvement in the general condition. Anxiety, however, must continue."

Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett spent 45 minutes from 2:15 to 3, at Buckingham Palace this afternoon. Despite this special visit, it was authoritatively stated there was no change in King George's condition since morning.

The doctors' consultation lasted for more than two hours—much longer than usual.

The public took encouragement nevertheless from a palace intimation that Queen Mary has every hope of being able to fulfill her engagement to unveil the Mercantile Marine Memorial Tower on Wednesday.

Princess Victoria, sister of King George, called at Buckingham Palace at 4 p. m. today. She was immediately taken to the apartments of the Queen.

Dolores' Dearest on Del Rio's Coffin

Berlin, Dec. 10 (AP)—Jaime Martinez Del Rio, who died here Friday of blood-poisoning, was buried today in St. Matthias Cemetery.

The only flowers on the coffin were those contributed by Dolores Del Rio, American film actress and former wife of the deceased.

Burial here was temporary, as final interment is to be made in Mexico.

Wales Speeding on Train From Italy to Channel

Brindisi, Italy, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, speeding to the bedside of King George, landed from the cruiser Enterprise at 12:23 p. m., and seven minutes later left for London by special train.

A force of 160 Italian sailors, one company of infantry and one company of aviators lined the short route from ship to train, but in accordance with the prince's request no military honors were rendered.

$188 Stolen From Charlestown Safe

Two safes were cracked in two cities today, yeggmen in Charlestown securing $188, but those who operated in Waltham getting nothing for their pains.

The $188, in silver, was obtained from the safe of the Richmond Theater in Chelsea st., Charlestown. In the Boston Branch grocery at 700 Main st., Waltham, the yeggs got nothing.

Linnell at Convention

Arthur E. Linnell, acting insurance commissioner, was in New York today attending the semi-annual convention of insurance commissioners. The convention will end on Friday.

A "PECK" OF MEDICINE DID NO GOOD

But ALL-BRAN brought natural relief

Read what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN did for Mr. Hamilton—a chronic sufferer from constipation.

"I am 65 years old and truly believe I have taken a peck of medicine, costing a good many dollars, for constipation, and all I got was temporary relief. Now since I began taking your ALL-BRAN I have had a perfect movement (in a single position, and that was my fault) every day. From a grateful user of your ALL-BRAN."

Name on Request, Penna.

Constipation causes headaches, blotched skins, sleeplessness, spots before the eyes. It is father of more than forty serious diseases.

Guard against it. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran. Because it is much more effective than part-bran products could possibly be.

A health cereal too! Serve with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Only Women Defy Judge Duff's Monday "Blues"

This was "blue Monday" in Judge Duff's session of municipal court.

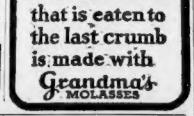
Because a spectator closed a draughty window, the judge ordered the room opened and then ordered one defendant to leave when his hard leather heels betrayed his entrance.

The embarrassed man who closed the window and started all the "blues" had an unhappy five minutes when Judge Duff thundered an order that he be haled to the bench. There the man learned he was a workman engaged on a job in the building, but curious to see how a court worked.

"Get out," ordered the judge. Then he stood up and ordered that every person not connected with a case go away from there also.

Looking at a group of women, the judge declared belief that all of them could not be defendants or witnesses and that those who were not should leave. Not a woman moved.

SOUPS stimulate appetite for the meal. To every plate add 1 teaspoon LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE



The GINGERBREAD that is eaten to the last crumb is made with Grandma's MOLASSES

Won't you please help

Give the children their share!

Don't forget the children when you're passing Chelmsford around. They'll love it and it's a healthful drink to give them. Chelmsford isn't like "cheap" ginger ales. It's made with the purest Jamaica ginger and flavored with sun-ripened fruit juice. That's why it tastes better and is better for you!

Yet it costs you no more than many inferior ginger drinks. It is New England's biggest-selling brand and we distribute it direct to dealers with our own trucks. Order a case for the pantry. Just be sure it's "Chelmsford." It pays. At all drug, confectionery and grocery stores. Golden and Pale Dry.

WASHINGTON YOUNG SET TO RUN CHARITY SHOW—BETTY ALDEN

Junior Leaguers Go in for "Something Different" and Will Conduct a Society Circus; Pony Ballet to Be a Feature With Society Girls Participating; Smart Patroness List

BLESSED BE THE WASHINGTON JUNIOR LEAGUE, SINCE IT HAS THE ORIGINALITY AND SPIRIT to do a "benefit" in a way amusingly new and informal. As you scan the horizon, oh Boston maid and matron, searching for the "something different" whereby to wheedle dollars from purses train your binoculars on the Federal City. Heed the fine frenzy with which the capital's lively young set goes about putting on a benefit. How they train for a "Society Circus," with a whip snapping ringmaster, a trainer, a pony ballet and all the tulle and tinsel of a real show under a real Big Top.

WITH THE WIFE OF A SENATOR AS GENERAL PROMOTER, A FORMER MEMBER OF CONGRESS ringmaster and countesses, princesses, cabinet members' daughters and other smart girls figuring on the sawdust, Washington's Junior League practices for its Circus with vast enthusiasm. Mrs. Walter E. Edge, spouse to the senator from New Jersey and formerly Miss Camille Sewall of Bath, Me., is president of the league and so assumes the awe inspiring title of grand director. Former Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland is the snappy ringmaster whipping the usually dilatory debutantes and other youthful actors into shape.

A REAL CIRCUS TRAINER DESCENDS ON WASHINGTON TO ASSIST IN PUTTING THE LEAGUERS through their paces, and rehearsals go on every day and sometimes several times a day. The girls are having a world of fun with the genuinely hard work that rehearsals entail, but the social game is suffering while training hours are on, since engagements go into the discard and the soup gets cold and the ices melt as luncheon and dinner dates are not kept. Tinsel and tulle and other show equipment is costing a pretty penny, but is dressing the circus up tremendously.

EVERY SOCIETY MAN IN WASHINGTON IS CLAMORING TO BE A clown and play in a clown band. Mrs. William Van Deventer is a stunning Queen of the Arena. And the blue ribbon ponies doing their paces will be the Princess Antoinette de Ligne, daughter of the Belgian Ambassador; Miss Alice Davis, daughter of the Secretary of War, and Mrs. Davis; Miss Victoria Tytus, Miss Jeanette Hume, Miss Helen Robinson, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Mrs. Robinson; Miss Katharine Carlisle, Miss Phyllis Hight and Mrs. Robert Pell. May Day in Holland will be beautiful; the Midway will be amusing; the barker for the show will be stentorian and the audience will be Washington's top lofty ones.

IT DOES SEEM A PITY THAT SOME OF THIS tinsel and tulle and sawdust merriment should not be grafted onto the local calendar, one that carries an overwhelming number of "benefits" on its shoulders and moves in its accustomed way with a certain aura of brilliance, to be sure, but without the spice of variety. Miss Louise Fessenden's coterie, that annually does something for the Infants' Hospital, is exactly the gifted and original set to do a circus with all the gaiety and abandon of a real tented show, and thus earn the thunderous applause of everyone concerned.

THE STEAMSHIP ILE DE FRANCE, that plies a lordly way to foreign ports over turbulent North Atlantic seas, is away for a crossing that puts her passengers down on French shores in plenty of season for a round of the bijou shops in Paris before Christmas eve and the great birthday itself arrive to be celebrated joyously and religiously. Getting to Paris in time for Les Fetes de Noel is more or less a yearly duty with some, pleasantly self-imposed by Americans given to traveling the wide world over.

MISS FANNY P. MASON OF Commonwealth ave. has departed on the majestic French liner to spend Christmas abroad, being one of the itinerant set so perfectly at home in every clime that Christmas in Paris is as familiar a spectacle as her own candle lighted Beacon Hill. It was not so very many moons ago that Miss Mason came home from several months of wandering, to stay briefly at her town house and just as briefly at her pleasant "Meadow Farm" in Walpole up in New Hampshire, and then pack up and sail away again.

DOING DELIGHTFUL THINGS for the debutante continues to be the thing and to tinge the social scheme with brightness, until such time as the Still Younger Set comes home from school to wrest fashionable and family attention from the buds. Just now, however, the Smith, Bryn Mawr and Vassar "specials" haven't even commenced to get steam up, so the bud still holds away as the very center of the social universe. This week three large balls give the dancing debutante scarcely an interval between them in which she may rest her tripping toes and catch a beauty sleep.

A FLORIST WHO MANIPULATES his colors with the true artistic touch has rare blanche to create a brilliant mise en scene for Dr. and Mrs. Elisha Flagg's guests when they dance on Wednesday at the Somerset. In honor of Miss Mary Flagg, Friday evening the clans of Paine and all the other clans tied to that distinguished family by kin or friendship links will be in evidence, in the Somerset's ballroom, at the Charles K. Cummings' ball for their third daughter, Miss Margaret Cummings. An army of relatives figures prominently in the guest list, which runs into numbers since the debutantes all are bidden and the ratio of three to one must be maintained when dancing partners are to be considered.

IT IS A STUNNING YOUNG creature for whom the week's first dance is given. This evening at the Hotel Somerset Mrs. Harold Cutler entertains in the proper way for her daughter, Miss Dorothy Preston. And very easily does Miss Preston step into the category of "beauties" of the 1928-9 season. She had a pretty coming out tea early in the season, before the Smart Set had deserted summer homes for town. And now at the height of the season a party at the Somerset helps fill debutante engagement books and debutante souls with happiness.

Rich Dad Won't Give Elopers a Blessing

New York, Dec. 10 (INS)—Samuel Klein, multi-millionaire merchant of New York, today continued his refusals to recognize the collegiate marriage of his daughter, Ruth, 16, to Herbert Stone, 22, son of Abraham Stone, wealthy realty dealer.

The couple were married by a justice of the peace in Providence on November 30, but the news has just come out. Stone, a Harvard graduate, and the bride are both students at Columbia.

Ethel Barrymore to Resume Role Tonight

Ex-Cub Reporter Gets $1000 a Day

Chicago, Dec. 10 (AP)—How to spend a thousand a day was the question ringing in Philip Challenger's ears today. A few weeks ago he worried over how to live on his cub reporter's salary of $15 a week.

A $6,000,000 estate, which he received on his 21st birthday under his grandfather's will, had set Challenger planning a five-year trip around the world.

Hastings Named as Du Pont's Successor

Dover, Del., Dec. 10 (AP)—Governor Robinson today appointed Daniel O. Hastings, now judge of the municipal court in Wilmington, to be United States Senator to succeed T. Coleman DuPont, who resigned last week.

YOU CAN BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT

This constant taking of laxatives, this dragging of the bowels and the inevitable weakening of the muscles isn't necessary. It can be stopped—stopped effectively—stopped with Thalax.

Thalax brings prompt relief from constipation. But it does so without forming the habit of constantly looking to keep the bowels working. Instead, Thalax aims to break the medicine taking habit. For it gradually strengthens the bowel muscles and restores their natural action. With the result that after a reasonable length of time, you should need no more medicine, except in rare emergencies.

If you suffer from constipation do at least try Thalax. A tablet or two at night will bring the desired relief in the morning—without griping or distress. Continue Thalax at intervals until your movements become normal, then you won't need to continue taking it, for the improved condition will last.

Thalax is found at leading druggists. Bottle of 30 tablets 35 cents. If your druggist hasn't it in stock, send direct to L. A. Hughes Company, Boston, Mass.

SIMPLICITY AND BEAUTY MARK PHILCO SETS

Years ago, George Eastman invented the slogan, "You push the button and we'll do the rest." Largely through the magic of these words, Eastman took the camera out of the laboratory and the studio and put it into the hands of almost every man, woman and child in the civilized world.

For years, radio receivers were laboratory instruments, complicated and not at all simple in operation. It has long been realized that the ideal receiver for popular use would be one as simple to operate as a hand camera. In achieving this goal the new Philco Neutrodyne Plus has taken long strides.

Without reservation, the makers of this popular receiver assure purchasers that they can plug it into any electric light outlet, turn the switch, and tune in station after station with flawless tone, with any desired volume from a whisper to a roar, and with knife-blade precision. This achievement puts the radio into the foolproof class of the table lamp, the flatiron and the electric toaster.

For the family housed in an apartment building, where metal sheathing, elevators, motors and other conditions make reception difficult with the ordinary set, the Philco comes as a revelation. Distance, volume, daylight reception, lack of hum and static, and freedom from the mess of battery care, make it ideal for the city dweller. Color finishes that range from flaming Chinese red through the rainbow hues to sober greys and browns, give a choice of receivers and matched speakers which will ornament any room. As an added touch, there's a jack in the front panel for the use of a phonograph pickup.

Ends His Life for Love of Waitress

New York, Dec. 10 (INS)—Hiram Sherman, 25, of East Syracuse is dead today because of his love for Barbara Curlies, a waitress in a Third ave. restaurant. Sherman took his life with gas in his room, after writing the following note to the girl:

"No doubt you will wonder what caused this sudden change of mind. But God only knows I cannot live between two fires, and you are, as you know, one of them. I will take this means of exit."

WHAT ARE OUR PASTIMES?

THE INDIVIDUALITY of a people is reflected in the manner in which it spends its leisure hours. Parts stamps its character upon the visitor by means of its sidewalk cafes, its opera, its Theatre Français, its Latin quarter, its Montmartre, its boulevards, its "Forties," its cabarets. New York has its White Way, Metropolitan Opera, Winter Garden, its Greenwich Village. Chicago has the lake front, Los Angeles its canyons, New Orleans its French Quarter. One would suppose that radio would naturally reflect the diversions of the population served. What impression of Boston's or New England's individuality does the visitor receive if he seeks to know us through our radio? Possibly he can form a fairly accurate estimate of our tastes, our daily activities, our ideals and our sectional entity merely through listening to radio programs night after night, but to the New Englander this seems far from probable. In the first place, there are not more than two or three persons regularly heard on local radio programs whose accent remotely resembles that of any section of New England. In the second place, practically no effort is made to feature diversions which are typical of the region. Local dance orchestra and theater broadcasts are identical with those of every city in the land. Chain programs are national property. Radically speaking, New England differs not a whit from the rest of the nation in the things which make up its life outside of office and mill and shop. Is it possible that we have unconsciously let the New England which we have known slip away from us?

MICROPHONE BARES VOCAL DEFECTS

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

RADIO will never be perfect until the day when some genius develops a knob to jack a flatting tenor back to true pitch and steady the wobbling notes of a frightened soprano. The motion picture camera can make a freckled Cinderella look like Marie Antoinette by such a simple expedient as photographing through gauze. Stage putty can build a sunken nose bridge, and Paul Poiret can give elegance to the humblest mode extra. But to date there has been no means discovered by which the microphone can wipe out the defects of the human voice and impart to the performers tones a beauty which nature has denied. Who is there in the vast radio audience who has not strained and yearned to help the artist of the hour over a tight place in "A Persian Garden," or said a silent prayer that the intervals of "Moon of My Delight" might be jumped without disaster?

FOR TIRED PHONOGRAPHS

PERHAPS, after this needed improvement is incorporated in the modern radio receiver, the forward-looking inventor will next turn his attention to a device to revive studio phonographs when they show signs of running down. It is truly a helpless feeling which grips the distant radio listener when, three-quarters of the way through "Silver Threads Among the Gold," the radio gramophone begins to grow weary. Its tone goes fretful and flatter, heading for a nosedive. But hark!—someone in the studio rushes to the rescue. Apparently the crank is given a couple of hasty turns, and the music begins a slow climb once more towards its former estate. Up—up in a weird wail, even faster it mounts, reaching top speed when the needle arrives at the end of the groove, and we are informed that oil burners wrapped in silver paper make a MOST appROPRIate CHRISTmas gift at only THREE hundred DOLLars, payable weekly, monthly and semi-annually.

LEAGUE TAKES NO ACTION ON WORLD COURT

Lugano, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Council of the League of Nations will do nothing at its present session to expedite American adhesion to the World Court by clarifying the problem of advisory opinions.

By unanimous vote of its 14 members the council today postponed action on a resolution which recommended that a study be made as to whether advisory opinions might be requested by a simple majority vote of the council.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to direction. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

PHILCO
ELECTRIC RADIO

Philco
Philadelphia
Gentlemen:—

I have just recently put my Philco through an exhaustive test which will interest you.

Although I live in the "splash" of station WENR (less than ¼ mile away)—I cut through it easily and brought in 88 distant stations from all parts of the country, I also cut through two strong locals from NYC, Los Angeles, and WRC, Washington, D.C.

The Philco is particularly good in the low wave lengths where most sets fall down. I brought in four stations between 202.6 and 205.4 which are impossible to get on any other set I ever tried. And in the high wave lengths, from 483.6 to 545.1, I got nine stations.

This letter is entirely voluntary. In these days when it is so difficult for most people to choose from the many sets on the market, I want to go on record as saying that the Philco out-performs any I have ever heard.

Very truly yours,
J. P. Hanley
Chicago

From Colorado Mining Town

"Until I heard the Philco, no set has ever come near being satisfactory in this town, which is extremely difficult for radio because of the high surrounding mountains and high voltage transmission lines. The Philco, at last, brings in all the stations—many of them even in the daytime."

M. J. CANAVAN, Ouray, Col

Marvelous Selectivity

"You may be interested to know that recently on my Philco I tuned in KFI, Los Angeles, on Point 80, tuning out entirely WGBF, Evansville, Indiana, which was coming in on Point 81. Later I also got KNX, Los Angeles, with splendid volume."

G. W. WAKEFIELD, Wenonah, N. J

Clarity of Tone

"My Philco has brought to me three Philharmonic concerts. Being an enthusiastic amateur of music, I tested its reproduction by following an orchestral score. Hearty congratulations! The difficult low notes and drum parts came in without the slightest blur or distortion."

MURIEL I. SYMINGTON, Brooklyn, N. Y

Neutrodyne-Plus

Thousands now know the full meaning of Neutrodyne Plus, Philco's New Radio Discovery. Neutrodyne—clear, full and undistorted—plus supersower! Flonzaley Quartet

JORDAN HALL
December 12—8:15 P. M.

CHAMBER-MUSIC has lost none of that intimate charm which it held in the days of powdered perukes, lace cuffs and satin knickers. The Flonzaley Quartet has done much to popularize this old form of music. Hear Adolfo Betti, Alfred Pochon, Nicholas Moldavan and Iwan d'Archambeau in person. Then hear them on the Orthophonic Victrola. Both are the Flonzaley Quartet. Hear especially "Quintette in E Flat Major" (Schumann) (Records Nos. 8092 to 8095). Reproduction, breath-taking in its realism.

GOODFELLOWS, HEAR APPEALS FOR AID!

ing to spread cheer among the unfortunate at Yuletide, there are two families asking pitifully for this aid.

One such appeal—from a Roxbury mother—follows:

"I am a poor woman with a large family and my husband has no steady work. I have seven children and expect an increase in May. None of the seven is old enough to work.

"They all need warm underclothes and stockings more than anything else. There are six boys and one girl. The ages of the boys are 15 years, 14 years, 11 years, 8 years, 6 years and one year. The girl is 8.

"I would also be very thankful for anything else you could give me."

From South Boston comes this letter, written by a 15-year-old girl:

"I am writing to you to ask you if you will please help us to have a Christmas dinner, and my father is dead and my mother is sick and I am trying to work to keep the rent paid up.

LEFT SCHOOL

"My little sister goes to school and we have no one to help us, and if you could only give us anything we will be so glad to get it.

"I am only 15 years old and I had to leave school to help my Ma. My poor Ma has nothing. I wish I was older so I could make more pay.

We are trying to live on $8; that's all we get. We pay $4 for rent and my Ma is looking for work, but can't get it. I don't know what we are going to do, so if some dear friends will come and see my Ma and give us something for Christmas, I will be the happy girl.

"My sister needs a pair of shoes. She is 13. Please come and help us, dear Goodfellow, for Christmas. Please don't forsake us."

It's easy to be a Goodfellow. This is the Goodfellow plan, one that is easy and simple:

FILL OUT BLANK

Each year hundreds of letters are received by the Boston Evening American from fathers, mothers and children asking that the Christmas season be made happier for them by the help of Goodfellows.

If you want to be a Goodfellow for one or more families, write immediately to the Goodfellow Editor of the Boston Evening American and fill out the blanks published with this article. State if you wish, the district of Boston, or any city, or the section of a town, in which you would like to be a Goodfellow.

The Goodfellow Editor will then send you the names and letters of the needy and you can have the heartiness of learning of what is needed, buying it yourself and delivering it, too.

WRITE NOW

Think of the joy of being a real Santa Claus yourself.

If you cannot give the time to the buying and delivering, the Goodfellow Editor will be glad to attend to it just for you.

Just send him your ideas and your orders, your selection of special district for your case or cases, and he will carry out everything just as you wish and comfortably, too.

Write today to the Goodfellow Editor, Boston Evening American, Winthrop sq., Boston. Tell him what you wish to do, what sick family or families you wish to provide for and he will forward one or more of the pathetic letters of appeal that he is receiving every day from those who deserve most.

Don't forget. Write or fill in the blank NOW.

Be a Goodfellow.

IN REVERE CONTEST

Andrew A. Casassa is the Republican candidate for mayor in Revere's election tomorrow.

12 BAY STATE CITIES ELECT TOMORROW

Contestants for public office in 12 cities completed their campaigns today in preparation for municipal elections tomorrow.

In the majority of cities spirited contests have developed, with considerable interest centering in Revere.

The other cities in which elections will be held are Everett, Malden, Melrose, Woburn, Medford, Newton, Chelsea, Beverly, North Adams, Lawrence and Westfield.

Andrew A. Casassa, Republican, and Michael F. Shaw, Democrat, contest for mayoralty honors in Revere tomorrow. The Republican nomination in the Beach City has always meant election.

Casassa claims his greatest strength among the ranks of the women voters, based on his record of support of humanitarian legislation while a member of the Massachusetts House and Senate from the First Suffolk District.

Casassa won the mayoralty nomination in November by a plurality of 410 votes over his closest opponent, William M. Keevey, city treasurer and defeated J. Vincent Murray, school committee member, a strong candidate for the nomination, by more than 1000 ballots.

Independent candidacy papers filed after the election by Keevey and by ex-Mayor Thomas A. Noone were withdrawn shortly after filing, in face of the almost unanimous Republican demand for Casassa to uphold the party banner in the race.

SEEK FIVE-DAY WEEK

A country wide drive for a five-day, 40-hour week will be inaugurated next year by the Photo Engravers' Union, according to First Vice President Edward J. Volz of the International union at a meeting of the Boston local held at the American House.

Gloucester Man Dies From Exposure

Gloucester, Dec. 10.—The body of John Niskanen was found near Fitzgibbon's quarry at Folly Cover, Lanesville. Medical Examiner Philip F. Moore pronounced the cause of death exposure. Evidently the man lay down and became overcome by the cold. He was 45, unmarried, and lived with his mother at Curtis st., Pigeon Cove.

Bruins-Americans War First Tilt of Busy Ice Week

TIGERS AND BEARS IN BATTLE

Feeling Between Tigers and Bears Strained; Struggle Expected Saturday

By BILL GRIMES

Hockey fans are going to put in a busy week running from the Garden to the Arena with the opening of the Harvard season, along with the Bruins-American contest tomorrow night, and the Tiger-New Haven battle on Saturday

The Garden will have the call tomorrow night and Wednesday, while the fans will trek to the Stadium at Soldiers' field on Saturday evening.

The Bruins will play a return engagement with their last night's opponents, the New York Americans, at the Garden tomorrow night. The Americans displayed fine possibilities during the early weeks of the season but were thrown out of step by the Worters affair.

On Wednesday night, Harvard will open its season at the Garden with Technology. Aside from offering Joe Stubbs an opportunity to see his crimson charges there will be little interest attached to this contest.

TECH IS UNDERDOG

Tech went down to defeat before Boston University in its opening game and although every Harvard candidate will be used, the Engineers have no chance to seriously threaten the crimson.

The first double header of the season will be staged at the Arena on Friday, when Boston University takes on Brown and a Bay State league game is played.

With all the respect to the Bruins-American game, the best fight of the week will be the Tiger-New Haven battle at the Arena next Saturday night.

The Tigers and the Bears staged a battle royal a week ago last night at New Haven, and the feeling between these teams is, to put it mildly, bad.

The New Haven team is composed of ex-Americans who are firm believers in the strenuous type of hockey. They went out to "put the wood" to the Tigers in New Haven and not only lost the game but also considerable of their fight.

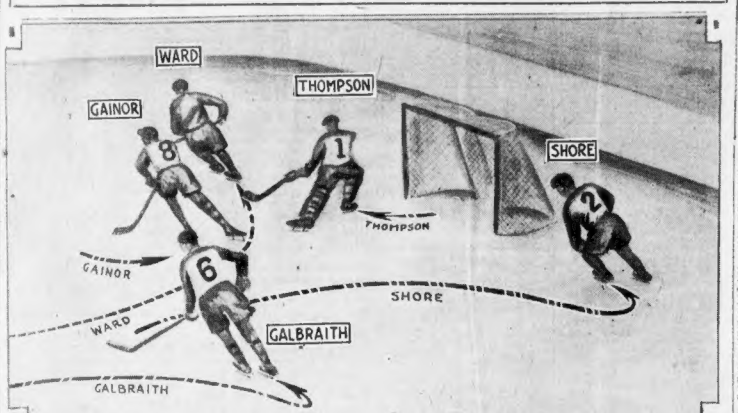
TIGERS AT BEST

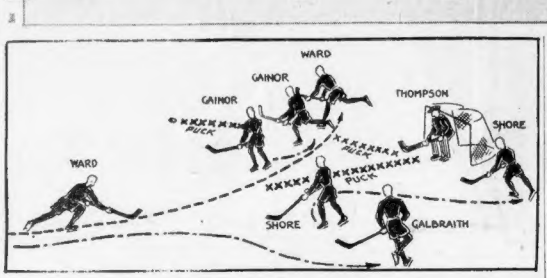
The Tigers may not be the greatest collection of hockey players in the Canadian-American league but when it comes to gameness they do not take back water from any of the clubs.

With Deacon Waite back in the line up, the Tigers will put on their best offense and New Haven might tend strictly to hockey or it is in for another upset.

The Tigers will be in Springfield tomorrow night and are looking for a fast battle before a capacity house.

BRUINS' SUB SHOWS HE KNOWS HIS STUFF





GAINOR TO THE RESCUE

With the score tied one all in the first period of the Bruins Maroons game at the Arena, Frankie Ward, classy Montreal wing, made a great attempt to put his team in front and would probably have succeeded but for the quick wit of "Dutch" Gainor, who was playing defense for the Rossmen in place of Captain Lionel Hitchman, who was out with a bad shoulder. Ward made a solo down the right lane and shot just before reaching the defense. He dashed right through after making the shot and was in front of the cage as Goalie Thompson cleared. The puck came out to where he was stationed and it seemed certain that he would cage it, but before he could hit the disc, Gainor arrived and drove it out of danger. It was a close shave for the Bruins and may have decided the game for had the Maroons taken the lead at that point, it isn't likely that they would have been beaten out by four goals.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

President Frank Calder is coming in for some criticism for the angle he took on the Worters and Trottier cases. Worters wanted more money than Pittsburgh felt it could afford to pay, while Trottier, who was on the reserve list of the Maple Leafs, refused to report to that team.

The Canadian fans are asking why Worters was suspended and Trottier allowed to go unpunished. It would appear as though Roy Worters and the New York Americans were the goats.

There is so much money invested in hockey that the powers cannot afford to shoot otherwise than straight from the shoulder. Otherwise, professional hockey will sooner or later have considerable explaining to do.

The Bruins added thousands of fans to their supporters by the article of hockey they played against the Maroons. The Bruins have never lacked support since their first season, but they never were tendered the wild applause that greeted them as they skated off the Garden ice after the second period of the Maroon game.

They would have you believe that Montreal is the hot bed of hockey fans, but don't you believe it. In fact, professional hockey is gradually being weaned from Canada, and within a short space of time Montreal and Toronto will be the only Canadian representatives in the N. H. L. and Boston will be the greatest hockey city in the world.

Jimmie Gardiner's threats of fining players who did not pass the puck has worked wonders with his Rhode Island Reds. The Gardiner outfit won but one game up to the time that Jimmie boiled over, but since then have defeated both New Haven and Springfield. When you threaten to hit the pocketbook of any professional athlete, you get results.

Since Reg Mackay's name was added to the injured list of the Tigers, Manager Eddie Powers has been working Harley Frost out on the defense. Frost had always played as the defense berth, but has been joined the Tigers and judging from his playing in practice, he feels far more at home there than he does on the forward line.

As far as defensive play is concerned there is no player on the Tiger squad as capable as Frostie and if he is given an opportunity to show in a game, someone is going to lose a job.

Nels Stewart was a bitter disappointment on his first appearance at the Garden. The big Maroon winger played the same type of hockey he resorted to while wearing the Cleveland uniform. He loafed through practically the entire game, thereby robbing the Montreal outfit of much of its punch.

Eddie Shore and Dutch Gainor did a fine job on the Bruins' defenses. They used rare judgment in using up Maroon attacks, giving Tiny Thompson the best protection he has had in this season. Gainor shows to better advantage on the defense than he does on the line, and he was an ideal partner for the hard-working Shore.

Deacon Waite will be back at center for the Tigers this week. Deacon has been transferred to his berth with a severe attack of flu, but expects to be in form for tomorrow night, when he will make his debut as a Tiger in Springfield, his old stamping ground. The return of Waite will add a much needed punch to the Tiger defense

Chief Maracle of the Springfield Indians will be taken up to the Rangers next season, according to Lester Patrick. Maracle has developed noticeably since he joined the Indians, and Patrick feels that the Redskin will have no trouble making the N. H. L. grade.

SCHOOLBOYS OPEN WINTER PROGRAM

By DICK McSWEENEY

The schoolboys have tucked away their moleskins and pads to await the coming of another season, but this does not mean that there is any lull in interscholastic activities.

Four popular winter sports, track, hockey, basketball and swimming now engage the attention of athletically inclined youths.

Track which always has a large following, seems well on its way to a big success. The annual B. A. A. meet, the Andover interscholastic meet and the State meet, will be the highlights of this great winter sport.

Hockey is getting under way and it will not be long before the Hub schools, as well as the suburban institutions, have teams on the ice.

The Boston seaters have a great advantage over their suburban brethren since they will play at the Arena where a good playing surface may be had at all times. The suburban outfits have to depend on the weather for good ice.

Basketball is growing in popularity every year. The majority of the suburban high schools begin practice this week for the host of contests.

Swimming as a winter sport is comparatively new, but enthusiasm is developing in the various schools and this year is sure to see more of the schoolboys out for this healthy activity.

With these four sports to engage his attention, the schoolboy fan can no longer say, "It looks like a long, hard winter."

MAL STEVENS RAPS YALE 'FRATS'

Montclair, N. J., Dec. 10 (AP)—Mal Stevens, Yale's football coach, thinks the increase in fraternity activities was one important factor in Yale's unsuccessful gridiron season.

Speaking at the annual Yale rally in Nick Roberts' tavern at Montclair, Stevens said he wanted to offer no alibis, but that he did feel the fraternity question was one of the most serious handicaps to the football squad.

"Fraternity activities," said Stevens, "cut heavily into our work during three weeks of the season which were devoted to 'frat' rushing."

For years members of the faculty have been complaining of the encroachments of fraternity activities on college work, but it seems to have taken a demonstration of their harmful effects on football to arouse Yale to a realization that they must be curtailed. Next season, I am assured, they will be, so that is one less worry on our shoulders."

Stevens opened his address with the comment that he had intended to go to the Georgia-Georgia Tech game to scout Yale, but he did not want "anybody to get the idea that I am dodging any or my critics."

"So Dicky Pond is in Georgia to see what should be in preparation for our Georgia game next season," he added, "and I am here, with my chin up and a chip on my shoulder."

Tris Speaker Buys Two Giant Players

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—Tris Speaker, new manager of the Newark International, today engineered his first big deal by announcing the outright purchase from the New York Giants of Vic Aldridge, veteran right-handed pitcher, and Russell Wrightstone, utility infielder.

Aldridge was loaned to Newark late last season, winning five straight games, but was recalled at the close of the baseball campaign. He came to the Giants from Pittsburgh in the deal involving Burleigh Grimes after pitching on two championship Pirate clubs in 1925 and 1927.

Wrightstone spent eight years with the Phillies before coming to the Giants last season. He has played every infield position during his major league career as well as the outfield, and is a consistent .300 hitter.

James Cowhig Leads Commerce Track

James Cowhig, all scholastic selection of several Boston sports writers was elected to captain the High School of Commerce track team this year.

He was a high scorer for Commerce's track team last season and he is expected to repeat in old form. Cowhig was a middle-distance runner and a high jumper.

He was tied last year for first place in the jump, when he set a new record during the Regimentals.

Al Weston Staying in Shape for E-W Go

Although the other members of the Boston College football team have broken training, Al Weston, the backfield ace, is in the pink of condition.

He plans a program of track work this week in order to keep at the peak for the big East-West charity football game on the coast on December 29, at San Francisco.

Peres Open Dec. 15

Pere Marquette Council, K. of C., will play its opening game of the season Dec. 15, at the South Boston high school, with Malden city basketball team as the attraction.

Harvard Opens Ice Season With Tech

By TED LYNCH

Harvard opens another page of its great hockey book this week when it faces Technology on Wednesday at the Garden.

The Engineer game will mark the opening game of a schedule which is as tough as it is long. In preparation for the Tech game at Harvard's new ice home, Coach Stubbs will cut his squad of 60 candidates down to 20 tonight.

In the last practice before the Tech game, which workout is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, Stubbs will give every one of the 20 aspirants a chance to win a varsity berth.

Coach Stubbs will undoubtedly keep many of the veterans and those newcomers who have shone in every Crimson workout. He has been favoring a group all season and this squad will form the nucleus of his 1928 Crimson team.

That group includes Bert and Hugh Bigelow, Capt. Johnny Tudor, Covel, Cross, Elkins, Ellis, Everett, Garrison, Gibbens, Holbrook, Jackson, Lakin, Lewis, Newell, Pruyn, Rideout, Shearer, Stanley, Trask, and Watts.

GIRDMEN ON SQUAD

Four football players will be included in this select roster when they report to-morrow at the Garden. These gridsters are the Putnam boys, Elliott and Sumner; Sam Batchelder, and Bob Ogden, all coming up from Bill Stewart's Milton Academy hockey teams.

Stubbs today refused to divulge any of his starting six against the Engineers. The goal-tending situation is as dubious as ever and three guardians will get their chance in the Harvard cage on Wednesday night.

Dick Rideout, former Andover goalie, has come along fast the past week and rates high to win the varsity post.

The Crimson coach has formed some idea as to be rest of the team. He has simmered the defense group down to four men; the Bigelow twins, Sam Batchelder, and Mal Stanley. Eight forwards will be retained with veterans Tudor, Gibdens, and Lakin heading the gang.

TEAM LIKES GARDEN

Harvard's hockey team has progressed with rapid strides this year. The Garden, with its large playing surface, has made a big hit with the players and seems ideally suited for the system which Harvard hockey teams use.

The team has not had as much practice as a year ago but the coach reports his charges in excellent condition.

Stubbs will go into conference with Athletic Director Bill Bingham tomorrow in regard to the naming of his assistants. Bingham has given Stubbs full rein in picking his aides and Harvard hockey has flourished under the system. Stubbs will appoint a varsity assistant and a freshman mentor.

Johnny Martin should grab the varsity post, while Johnny Chase, last year's varsity leader, has been mentioned for the yearling job. Chase would make a successful coach. He played under the Harvard system for four years and is a great leader.

Sharkey and DeKuh Ready for Gong at Arena Tonight

BIG CROWD TO SEE BATTLE

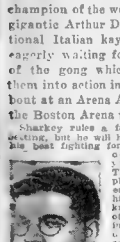
Punching Duel Is Expected When Sharkey and De-Kuh Collide Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

JACK SHARKEY considered by most boxing experts as the unerowned heavyweight champion of the world, and the gigantic Arthur DeKuh, sensational Italian kayo king, are eagerly waiting for the sound of the gong which will send them into action in a ten-round bout at an Arena A. C. show at the Boston Arena tonight.

Sharkey rules a favorite in the betting, but he will have to display his best fighting form if he is to conquer the youthful DeKuh. The latter has plenty of backers in view of his record of 19 knockouts, two of which were in a round each during the past month. Tiny Roebuck and Johnny Wild were the most recent victims of the heavy awaiting DeKuh.

There is tremendous interest in tonight's bout and it is expected that a huge crowd will be at the ringside when Sharkey and DeKuh sweep into action.



Jack Conway

The Arena A. C. announced today that there are many choice seats left and that the large seating capacity of the tough St. Nicholas will enable all who wish to do so to see the heavyweight jam.

The bout will make Sharkey's first appearance in a Boston ring since he knocked Georges Godfrey at the Boxing Bowl last September. Sharkey defeated Larry Williams New York two weeks later and went on to conquer Mike McTigue and Jim Maloney and then lost to Dempsey in the famous "Fair or Foul" battle.

Right on a campaign which he hopes will terminate with a victory over Dempsey in New York next June, Sharkey insisted that his first ring ap-pearance should be in Boston. He was anxious to show before a home crowd that the average fan could afford to take in tonight's show, prices being set for prices of from $1 to $3. The same show in New York would call for a $16.50 top, which is the ringside price Richard Kearney charged for any bout in which Sharkey has been a principal.

SHARKEY and DeKuh both went through strenuous training sessions at Jim Tolando's gym on Sunday afternoon. DeKuh worked first. The gigantic Italian went through eight rounds of training and looked to be in superb physical condition.

DeKuh is six feet two inches tall and tips the 240 pounds. He is well versed in punches good with each hand. DeKuh does his best work with his right while he drives a left and tries to either tie up the jaw or body.

Jim Flynn, who managed Jack Dempsey in his winning bout with Sharkey, will second the Italian champion tonight. Flynn predicts DeKuh will come through with a knockout win.

JACKIE DeNOBLE, colorful and game Little Roxbury lad, will do battle with Cap Calmado, hard hitting Filipino from the Navy, in the eight-round semi-final bout.

In the other eight-rounder Archie Saunders, veteran South Boston heavyweight, who is enjoying a new lease on life, will box Leo Hefferon, the lanky man of the ring, while the preliminaries will be featured by the appearance of the famous sock-twins from South Boston, Joe "Hambone" Bonay, who is to battle Frankie Woods of Dublin.

In another 8-rounder Smiling Mike McGowan colored middleweight, who has been christened the Real Ace of Spades by Admiral Ray Cross, will tackle Bert Moore of New York. Both contestants of DeKuh-Sharkey in the opening four-round bout Benny Zelnick of Milwaukee will tackle Big Boy Dawson of Dorchester.

THE TURN IN THE ROAD

B. C.-UNICORN GAME OFF

The Boston College B A A hockey game, scheduled for Friday night at the Arena, has been indefinitely postponed. Coach Sonny Foley's Eagles will not get into action until the 21st of this month, when the Dartmouth puckstars meet the B. C. six in Boston, on their annual Christmas sojourn.

Coach Foley and Manager Brown did not give any reason for the postponement but it is known that neither team is as yet prepared for a real hard hockey tussle. The Eagles, especially, are unfit and would probably look like a lot of schoolboys if they were forced to face the veteran Unicorns this week.

Remarkable Story of a Famous Actress

By CONSTANCE ROURKE

(CHAPTER 3)

THE Jenny Lind, which Maguire had quietly sold to the city, was retained for Booth's performances. The Chapmans, Junius Booth and his wife Edwin in a few productions with a few others made up the company. Booth opened at the old Tabb Street Theatre in The Iron Chest and it was the season had grown old, the excitement which followed was little short of hysterical. There was friendly interest in the spectacle, not only because Booth was facing the wars . . . he was now in the habit of facing such wars, breaking the hush conventions of the stage which had been his own, yet, he had seen the stage before he left the East. Here in a new and unfamiliar theatre, this wife abundant Caroline Chapman paved with a natural grasp on the essentials of character, within which her creative passion could overflow but also had cast away nearly everything of fixed tradition as far as we know. The elder Booth played with a ritual essentially simple, for which every touch of action or of business had long since been prearranged. If the mold seemed rigid, there was beauty—or might be—in final revelations of character. Within that deep pattern a wild and transcendent life might burn as if by the renouncement of small individualisms no longer understanding could be made complete.

Booth played with the old magnificence scattering the appearance of ease. Even through the grandiose structure of a play like "The Iron Chest," that savage and dynamic tortured power which was his broke into flame. In "Othello," "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "Richard III," "A New Way to Pay Old Debts" he played apparently with all his accustomed passion with a subtle and sudden revelation of agony, anger, guilt, remorse. Of all emotions perhaps remorse was that where both still revealed with most compulsion in a ton of thickest tragedy. And that volatile San Francisco public, so recently pleased with extravaganza, so easily slipping into indifference, listened to Booth and watched as though he was the only figure on the stage. Deep-chested the same audience came night after night. The Jenny Lind was packed to the doors during the brief two weeks of his engagement.

4 WOMEN GUILTY OF GAMING

Although they had protested the arrests as unjust, four Dorchester and Roxbury women pleaded guilty today in Dorchester court when arraigned on a charge of gaming on the Lord's day.

Bernard Greenberg, husband of the hostess at what the said was a whist party in the Greenberg home in Greenwood st., pleaded guilty to a charge of being present where gambling implements were found.

The four women are Mrs Bernard Greenberg, Mrs Etta Levine of Power st., Dorchester, Mrs Dora Hodges of Richwood st., Roxbury, and Mrs Sarah Rudnick of Abbotsford st., Roxbury.

They, with Mr Greenberg, were arrested early Sunday by Sergt William Bilen and two patrolmen of the Mattapan station.

In court today Sergt. Bilen, the only witness, testified they entered the Greenberg home in a peaceable manner when the found the door open.

The women were playing whist, cards and liners were chips on the table, according to the sergeant.

Sergt. Bilen's was the only testimony given, and Judge Churchill following the guilty pleas, placed the cases on file.

CITY HALL CLEANUP OF 'BUMS'

City Hall "lafers" officials and unofficial, felt the wrath of Mayor Nichols' wrath today.

After a brief personal survey of Boston's municipal headquarters this morning the mayor called upon the police and upon Supt. of Public Buildings John F. Englert to clear the corridors of City Hall annex.

Show of no snow, asserted Mayor Nichols, idlers, political hangers-on and grinblers must find other lounging places than City Hall.

He had reported, he said, that at least one well-known racketeer type was paid for dope sheets at the doors of City Hall offices.

The mayor's own official family came in for its share of censure too.

In a series of sharp-worded commands it was, Mayor Nichols informed department heads that all loafing under their several jurisdictions must cease immediately.

Not only must employes get on the job with increased vigor, said the mayor, but department heads themselves would do well to watch their steps.

The 90 per cent of efficient city employes said the mayor, must not be made to suffer for the 10 per cent who are stalling.

One clerk has recently been suspended for five days, Mayor Nichols declared.

Brandy Worst Killer, Says Harvard 'Rum' History

"The History of Liquor," from the time that Noah planted a vineyard to the prohibitory acts of the Eighteenth U. S. Amendment, is the title of a collection of books presented to the Boser Library at Harvard University today.

Many phases are represented from the "milk posset" recipe of Sir Walter Raleigh to information for making malt liquor at home so that persons might have it, "strong, fine and weak, at their own discretion."

One masterpiece is a book entitled the Anatomy of Drunkenness, which describes all stages of intoxication, from "the delightful condition when one is neither drunk nor sober" to the possibility of spontaneous combustion in extreme cases. Another book says that friends kills soonest, cure is next in point of fatality, and after that whiskey and gin."

Jeritza Tells About Care of Arms

By MARIA JERITZA.

"PERFECTION underneath the embellishment of our clothes," has been defined as true physical beauty. This is the standard toward which modern women work, and which thousands of them have attained.

It is comforting to know that a few rules of healthful living, including outdoor exercise, sensible food and sufficient sleep will bring symmetry. If there is any one part of your body that needs especial care to bring about correct proportions, skin texture and coloring, it is well to include in your daily regime a few minutes devoted expressly to improving that feature of beauty.

Let us consider, today, beauty of the arms. Nearly every woman would like to improve her arms in some particular. I shall suggest a regime that should in time perfect their shapes, bring about velvety skin texture, banish the dry, goose-pimples that sometimes disfigure the skin in winter time, bleach hairs and in general enhance the graceful lovelines of your arms and shoulders. Here, then, is the plan. Why do you not try it and see for yourself how well it works?

One a day, when you take your hot bath, go over the entire surface of your arms, including your elbows, with a flesh brush or a long-handled nail-brush and plenty of warm soapsuds. Scrub them gently but thoroughly. This process will loosen any impurities that have dried in the pores and wash them away. Dry your arms carefully, for chapping may result when the skin is left damp in cold weather.

Once every three weeks make a paste of powdered pumice stone, almond meal and warm water, and apply it to your arms, with your flesh brush. Remove the paste with more warm water. Pumice stone should dislodge dead cuticle, while almond meal has soothing, softening properties.

Having removed the pumice stone particles, dip absorbent cotton into a bleach consisting of equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide of hydrogen, and sponge your arms. This lotion, by the way, can be applied nightly to bleach hairs on the arms and fade any remnant of last summer's tan and freckles.

The third step in this beautifying process consists in giving the arms a hot oil bath with a mixture of almond and olive oil. Include your hands also, for the hot oil should soothe enlarged knuckles and joints that in the oil well. Massage up from your wrists to slenderize them. Remove the excess with cotton.

If your arms are too large they will only bath in oil baths once every month or so, but if they are scrawny you cannot do better than apply oil twice every week.

Last touch of all, after the oil bath, sponge your arms with either eau de cologne or 95 per cent grain alcohol, witchhazel or lavender water. In fact, any mild tonic astringent.

In addition to the occasional treatment, each day, while your bath is running, bring about velvety skin texture, banish the dry, goose-pimples that sometimes disfigure the skin in winter time, bleach hairs and in general enhance the graceful lovelines of your arms and shoulders. Here, then, is the plan. Why do you not try it and see for yourself how well it works?

If you will devote a few moments each day this winter to sensible care for your arms, you will be pleased, I am sure, with their enhanced beauty by next spring.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Divorces are most frequent between the fifth and tenth years of marriage, and next between the second and fifth years. After the fifteenth year of marriage the rate falls rapidly.

In England death duties on an estate of $1,250,000 amount to $312,500, and on one of $10,000,000, $4,000,000. In addition legacy duty has to be paid.

In 1909 the consumption of spirits in the United States was 2,250,000 gallons, but by 1913 it had fallen to 1,500,000. At present it is 10,500,000 and still increasing.

Chic Hat, Choker and Muff

Very important for cold weather fashions is this new group of costume accessories. The French designers are doing some very interesting things in these three-piece fur sets making a new tieup between hat, choker and muff. In the ensemble above, a brief, but stylish, bit of fur is combined in a novel manner with a small muff by the introduction of a shaped piece of fur appliqued flat on the crown of the hat and over one ear. One end of the choker pulls through a slash, holding it tight about the throat, while the other end is contrived in a fascinating fur bow of the fur.

Does Love Last in Poverty?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
In Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

ARE you going to marry for love? Or do you hope marriage will bring you an abundance of dollars and cents, even though romance may be entirely lacking?

If you are a typical modern girl you probably intend to marry for love and love alone. Possibly you may have exclaimed toward the end of some particularly hard day at the office or shop, when in a bored mood, "Oh, don't I wish some rich man would marry me and take me off of all this!" I shall marry the best man with money who asks me!"

But such a remark expresses merely a vacation rather than any real intention or desire to marry for money. There are women, of course, the "crepe-de-chine souls" who seem and plot to wed for money and for cost. But the vast majority of modern young folks realize that money alone does not bring happiness or success, and intend to marry for love.

Under these circumstances it may be interesting to ask yourself: Can romance exist independent of money? Does not love necessarily mean an income? We have a way of facing facts honestly these days and we consider this problem.

Jack is in love with Jill, he wants to look his best when he goes to see her. He may wish to carry her tokens of his regard—flowers, a box of candy. Or his impulse may be to invite her to a theater, dance, a movie. All this costs money, even leaving out of consideration such luxuries as taxis, football games or a convenient little roadster.

If on her part wishes to look her very prettiest to please Jack. And to gain a girl money to dress smartly and keep daintily groomed. So, in case, money inevitably enters into the situation where romance is concerned.

Love generally finds a way, it is true. Because Jack and Jill are in love they are much happier riding on top of the bus on fine Sunday afternoons, eating ice cream at the corner confectionery store, attending a neighborhood movie and dancing at Jill's home to the radio because they are together, than either would be without the other at the most expensive revue, supper club or full-dress affair. Still, even ice cream sodas and bus rides require cash and courtship naturally tends toward marriage, so that the financial factor is not to be ignored!

For Jill to share expenses would help not matters, for Jack's feeling toward Jill is protective love. He wants to pay her way. And that sense of protective affection from the young man she loves thrills Jill. Human nature is not easily made over. Despite theories, and despite the economic independence of women, every worthwhile man insists on assuming protective responsibilities for the support of the woman he marries. Until he can do so, he does not marry. By this, I do not mean that a substantial bank account is absolutely essential. But there should be dependable earning capacity.

Much hone for the future and $30 weekly salary are the amount of Dick's capital in this, his first year out of college, plus, of course, health and a background of family. A college education, good sense and some skill at housekeeping and homemaking, thanks to a sensible mother, will be contributed by Florence when she and Dick wed. But that event will not take place until Dick gets a promotion. For, although Florence will gladly forego luxuries she is used to, such as motors, maids and trip abroad, still both agree that $30 leaves too small a margin of safety even for housekeeping in a hand-box.

Waiting a year or two will not hurt their romance, but will test their love. And love that cannot stand this test is not a very sound foundation for marriage.

In these days, many wives like to earn money through their business skill and pay for clever specialties to manage the housework. Nearly every wife, unless there are small children at home, has some time to devote to constructive, money-making. This plan of outside, remunerative work often solves the financial problem, banishing the bogey of poverty.

Money may be a blessing or a curse. If it is regarded as an opportunity for helping others and does not prevent simple, unassuming home life, it is an unmitigated blessing. Some of our richest homes are lovely and happy, not just because they are rich, but because wise and understanding love abides in them. Family life in a cottage may be brutal, shiftless, poverty-stricken, due to self-indulgence and bad management.

Love is the great happifier of life and marriage. Nothing should be given importance above unselfish love—neither money nor ambition, amusement nor travel, but love means money.

Inspire the man who loves and needs you to work and earn and save, and when the time comes that you and he can marry, resolve to content yourself with the scale of living he can afford. Then your love and his will only be cemented by every financial problem that may arise.

A feather in your cap is one of the season's newest dictums for the evening mode. An evening cap of black net with a single feather in front proudly flaunts five or six green ostrich plumes. They are placed at random over the cap, at right, left, east, south and west.

Hospital Benefit Play, Dec. 18

THREE hundred and sixty-five days a year, appeals are made to club women for money, personal services in behalf of some charity or other and articles ranging in size from a pin to a circus tent. And what instantaneous response! Mrs. Walter Eaton, for instance, remarked: "God bless them, as long as the world lasts may there be club women, they are the very salt of the earth!"

In the name of the Brookline Free Hospital for Women I have been asked to administer another Appeal Pill," so I must do it. I am pated with jam. This pellet differs from most of the others, for ly swallowing it, he patient is eally benefited.

Mrs. King

In spite of the generosity of many friends the hospital faces a year of $29 or more in bills fell short one-third of its objective because of the imperative demand by vermont flood victims for articles of furniture, clothing, bedding, etc. It is impossible to use one of the beautiful words in the English language to describe adequately the work of this institution. Suffice it to say that it is one of the most worthy and necessary charities in Boston. Its work is of a specialized character, and it is the only institution of its kind in New England. Its patients are women who require surgical treatment, and the number is constantly increasing.

SOCIETY MATRONS HELP

A little group of society matrons headed by Mrs. G. T. King, has taken over the first Tuesday nights of the Theater Guild plays at the Wilbur Street Theater, as a method of raising funds. Mrs. W. D. Orcutt, in charge of publicity, has asked me to call the attention of club women to the next hospital benefit night, December 18, and urge them to buy up the remaining seats.

"Caprice" is scheduled for that date, with "Marco's Millions" to follow on January 3. The Guild's reputation for artistic excellence is so well established that there is no necessity to emphasize the importance of this event. The return seats has been taken, but it need not trouble one, for tickets can be had and the stage seats. Tuesday nights are becoming the season's first excitement.

It is impossible to see either of these plays and could not pay a little by sending $5 each plus 15 cents for postage to Mrs. W. D. Orcutt, 333 Commonwealth ave. The proceeds from the affair will go to the Hospital Building Fund. Checks should be made payable to the Hospital Benefit Fund. Seating will be in order of receipt of checks. Mrs. Orcutt is organized a number of people and is making a personal appeal for tickets. Those who are unable to attend the play are urged to send a check for $5 or less and help the cause along.

A fleeting love is a far harder thing for a woman to endure from any man than a permanent hatred.

Love, like eating and breathing, is a perfectly natural thing, but love-making, like cooking, is one of the refined arts—and a man is seldom to have the refined touch unless he has any special gift.

Many a bachelor would marry, if he could only be one girl long enough to get her over the idea of her before another girl caught his eye.

An old fashioned girl is one who

A PRETTY FROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL

6316. This is a splendid style for crepe de chine, satin for the printed lightweight woolens, and for georgette and voile. A group of narrow tucks trims the front from shoulders to belt, at each side of a pointed extension which develops a flared section of the skirt, that has its fullness also disposed of in tucks. The front is slashed at the neck to below a small round collar. The sleeve pouches attractively above a wide band cuff.

The pattern for this model is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. To make the dress for a 10 year size will require 2¼ yards of 36 inch material together with ¼ yard of contrasting material for facing on collar, cuffs and belt.

A man's idea of a "frail memory" is the kind that keeps reminding him of a debt, a duty or a woman that he wants to forget.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I come from a foreign family. My father is a drunkard and a brute.

"I have only one sister. She is younger than I am. My mother works, but he spends all his money on drink. I have no love for him.

"When he is drunk he comes for knives and guns and wants to fight. Once he hurt mother so that he was arrested and she was sent to the hospital. Everyone knew, because it was in all the papers. Every one thought mother would leave him then. I begged her to, but she would not listen.

"On account of my father, people think I am bad, but I have not done anything wrong.

I love one young man—love him more than my life. He found out about father, yet he tries to be friendly with me. But I won't let him. He thinks he thinks I am bad. He told some one I know that he would like to take me out.

MY dear, you must snap out of the mournful mood that is cast over you by your father's brutality and make your own life bright, good and beautiful. You can do this.

If you have reason to believe that the young man who is so interested in you is a worth-while friend, by all means cultivate his friendship and accept his invitations. But tell him the truth about your home life—do not try to deceive him.

Keep Business From Home

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.,
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

YOU have probably had the experience of meeting a person socially, then later seeing him at his office or doing business with him there, and being surprised how differently he acted in the latter place.

This particularly holds true of men. The male sex, much more than the female, is able to keep business and home distinctive and apart—and this is exactly as it should be.

To be sure, I am not advocating that a person should be a villain at work and an angel before the fireside. Such exaggerated and extreme types of behavior could only be guilty [illegible] anywhere.

But I do believe that business and environment calls for reactions that are quite different from those engendered amid home surroundings.

Some of us surely have not learned the difference. At any rate, their greatest fault in this regard is the fact that they carry their troubles and worry of work back to their family at night and therefore make themselves most disagreeable companions for wives and children.

Often, too, wives and mothers save up the trials and tribulations of the day, their household cares and vexations with the children, only to unload them upon the tired husband even before he has time to sit down to the dinner table.

Free and frank discussions of pressing problems is an advantage [illegible] men and women couples if they are not carried on in the spirit of complaining. The comfort in [illegible] which the husband takes in his wife's home cares, and the more [illegible] she gains into his business affairs, the more likely are the bonds of mutual understanding between them strengthened. The daily exercise keeping everything in touch is pernicious. There always remains a mysterious side which no other [illegible] can possibly fathom. It pulls couples apart. It makes them strangers.

By making light fares, saving, keeping silent—these are degrees of a different color.

No work or money what its kind, whether at home or in the office, factory or farm, can possibly be absolutely free from trouble. Allowing such troubles, however, to become big covers to mar the peace and serenity of evenings with the family merely makes matters worse and solves nothing.

Many a man fears going home at night because of the petty complaints he knows will be made as soon as he puts his foot on the door step. Many a woman, also dreads the night when her husband will hang his head or criticize everything that happens.

Evenings at home should be times of relaxation, times that refresh the body and mind, times that one looks forward to during a hard day with an instant joy.

Train your mind and your emotions so that you can make them behave as you will.

Live developing character. It gives you confidence in yourself.

Let the day spell work for you and the evening recreation. Balance your waking hours.

Big men of business and the professions are able to accomplish this. That is one reason why they are big. They look their problems in the face, then turn the key in the office door.

Author of "The Taxi Dancer"

Story of a "Good Gunman" and His Battles

CHAPTER 36

SHE got up and went to his chair, sat down on the side of it and put an affectionate arm around his shoulder.

"I've done nothing to displease you and I've never gotten into any trouble. When other girls have gone to the cities because the country was so lonesome and dull, I've stayed at home. And not because I felt it my duty—but because I loved to be with you and mother. But it is lonesome here and these boys I have known all my life aren't very attractive. It seems like the interesting ones always go away. Eddie isn't a bad person at all. He's really very nice—and won't you please be nice to him and not try to interfere?"

Her father reached up and took one of her hands.

"You could take the ears off a brass monkey if you wanted to," he declared. "But how do I know you won't fall in love with this fellow and want to marry him?"

"Don't be so romantic!"

"You are a mendacious diplomat," he reproved her. "You put me in a dreadfully awkward position, and you know you do. But you've overlooked one big argument, Marian—why don't you suggest that it is isn't allowed to come here that you would meet him elsewhere in secrecy?"

"I would!" Marian declared.

"In this case, I think I had better surrender, temporarily at least. But I am going to talk to your mother about this because, frankly, I don't like it at all." He hesitated. "—You're not, by any chance, in love with him already?"

She leaned over and stopped his lips with a quick kiss.

"You're positively an old fool, darling!"

But Mr. Thorndike's mind was not at ease, and when he was with Eddie next day, the two of them to tell over Marian's stubborn attachment for Eddie Regan. Her mother was disturbed, but her [illegible] men, [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] tion. "Once when I was a [illegible]

She stopped suddenly, and [illegible] by [illegible] the thought.

Mrs. Thorndike Suggested the Dinner Invitation to Marian

"But I don't think it wise to forbid her seeing him. Left to herself she'll wake up sooner or later. Let's let her see quite a bit of him—here in her own home. She's used to gentlemen and I think the contrast will open her eyes. It might be a good idea to have her ask him to dinner some night soon."

So it was agreed between the parents. Mrs. Thorndike herself suggested the dinner invitation to Marian. And Eddie, working once more with his axe in the timber, was called to the house by Tote to answer the telephone. He was overjoyed and, at the same time appropriately of the ordeal implied by Marian's rather formal invitation.

The beginning of the dinner, shortly after his arrival at the Thorndike home, made him acutely conscious of his lack of social experience. In truth, the meal and the table service were simple. What did give the event distinction was the quiet air of good breeding that was so utterly unlike the roystering table manners of his old companions. Too, he did not know whether Marian's parents expected him to be bright and entertaining, or whether he should act as little as possible. But Marian, sitting beside him, managed to keep him at ease as best she could.

From the first, she sensed his uncertainty. There were several topics that [illegible] available, however, and she [illegible] him how he was getting along with his timber cutting. On this subject he could talk agreeably; and without any self-consciousness, he spoke of the lore of the woods, of tools, axes, saw, wedges, and, in general the undependability of negro labor.

When the meal was finished Marian and her mother disappeared and Eddie faced the necessity of joining the library and smoking the cigar with the elderly gentleman who, despite his hospitality, seemed charged with a hidden unfriendliness. The winning of Marian—as far as the girl herself was concerned—was the least part of the ordeal implied by hope, he might dream—even in the secrecy of dark night hours he fought, consciously, pray—but it was like wishing for the moon. A radiance descended and covered him with glamourous light, but the moon was still beyond his reach.

Two men had opposed him. One, a rival, had possessed very natural advantage, but had gone down, knocked out. Without vanity, Eddie realized he had little more to fear from Tom Freeman.

The second man was Marian's father. To get past Mr. Thorndike would be infinitely more difficult.

They lit cigars—Eddie would have preferred a cigarette—and sat down comfortably. Eddie [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ON WRONG TRACK

By LUCY LOWELL

A FRIEND of this column writes that she has read with interest the claim of "Debunked" that most people are thoroughly honest and that it pays to be so.

"Don't you believe it for a moment," this latest correspondent warns. "Something has happened to 'Debunked,' just as something happened to me a long while ago to make the world look all crooked.

"I snapped out of it before the thing had gone too far, but it wasn't until I was almost crooked myself that I did so. People ARE DISHONEST, even if sometimes they do mean little despicable things. And I've found that the ones who do those very things are many times sorrier than anybody else about them when they wake up."

This correspondent's letter is too long to print in full, but these two paragraphs indicate pretty well her viewpoint.

A long time ago, she writes, someone treated [illegible] face—or so she thought—and she began to believe that there was no truth in anyone anywhere and that the only way to get along was to follow that twisted version of the golden rule which bids one to do others before they do you.

She succeeded fairly well, too, she admits. But she was not happy. Thinking bitter, warped thoughts seemed to poison her system; she grew ill physically as well as mentally and life seemed a dreary thing.

Then one day something happened—she doesn't say what—it was [illegible] but I fancy she may have [illegible] some deed of unselfish [illegible] which made her think.

And the more she thought the more she felt convinced that she had been on the wrong track. And [illegible] to make sure she switched [illegible] and began to live on the theory that people were pretty square after all if you were square yourself.

And, oddly enough, there came into her experience incident after incident to prove this true. And the most astonishing incident of all was the one which showed beyond a doubt that the person she had believed false was merely misunderstood and more than eager to [illegible] and [illegible].

Now I consider myself "thoroughly debunked," she finishes her letter. I am debunked of the notion that it pays [illegible] the most [illegible] thing in the world to be sure of this."

"Well," yawned Police Commissioner A, for he had been out the night before, and the night before that, "have you found the body?"

"What body?" snapped Lieutenant of Detectives B, as he sprayed his necktie with Black Narcissus perfume.

"Any body?" cried the Commissioner, sighing lightly. "See here!" he continued sharply, "Haven't you been the papers?"

"What papers?" blinked the detective.

The Commissioner fumbled through his pockets and brought forth some frayed and greasy clippings. As the Commissioner stepped forward, the detective instinctively backed away, at the same time stumbling over something.

He arose, mumbling and glanced down to see——

A beautifully gowned woman, prone on the floor! Furthermore, she was blindfolded. And in her jeweled fingers she clasped——

THE FIGHTING AGE

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

HAND-to-hand combat has gone out of style, pushed out by intelligence and what we like to call a higher order and age of culture. However, it is the exceptional boy who grows to maturity without relying the caveman age of self-preservation through the use of his hands.

To admonish your son NEVER to fight with his fists is to produce a weak, sissyfied boy who will be the butt of many scornful jibes from his companions.

In one family where I visit there are two boys, Bobby, aged nine, and John, aged twelve. Bobby became incensed about a month ago because a playmate insisted upon playing with his football every minute of the time he visited Bobby. A heated argument ended in Bobby furiously pounding the visitor. Bobby's father scornfully derided him upon hearing of it, and forbade Bobby's having company for a whole week. Bobby came sullenly home from school, hung around indoors gazing gloomily out of the windows and scowling on life in general. Then one night his pent up wrath burst forth, and John reported at the home fireside with a blackened and closed eye.

"What happened?" inquired Father, who arrived on the front porch simultaneously with John Bobby hopefully by, anticipating John's receiving a scolding and subsequent punishment as he did.

"Well," replied John. "Blake Danzer and these other big kids were teasing Mrs. Brown's little bull pup, Rags, and I told them to quit it. They didn't, and Blake poked him with a sharp stick and hurt one of Rag's eyes so I just couldn't stand it, Dad. I licked him." John waited solemnly to hear his father's reply.

"I'd have been ashamed of you, son, if you hadn't," replied the father. Noting Bobby's sputtering protest, the father took the two boys into his study and tried to explain the difference between Bobby's set and John's.

"There are times when it is all right to fight," he said. "You boys must be strong and able to defend any person or thing which is weak and which needs protection. Never allow a living thing to be abused while you are able to beat the person abusing it. On the other hand, to use your fists to attack playmates just to procure something you want is to be less than an animal, and when Bobby fought with his friend the other day he broke every rule of good-sportsmanship and courtesy. He was most to that little boy, and should have been polite to his guest.

Later he brought a punching bag especially for Robert, and put it up in the attic. Bobby fit into it eager to punch something, and was amazed and infuriated when the punching bag in an uncanny way flew back and punched him.

The father brought the boys boxing gloves and taught them the science of boxing. John being a bit older, gave Bobby a close race for the championship, which was excellent for one of Bobby's particular temperament. Too, Bobby soon learned that a white hot rage was not conducive to a speedy victory over his opponent. He painfully acquired self-control.

Warning by Savings Bank; Irish Lad Makes Millions

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—The oldest savings bank in New York, the Bank for Savings, has posted this notice, so that all who come in to withdraw funds find it staring them in the face:

"Depositors are warned, in their own interest, against withdrawing money for proposed investment until they have consulted with some bank official, either here or in any other bank or trust company, as to the safety of the investment."

This Institution has one savings account still running which was opened 109 years ago. Only $13 was ever deposited, but this $15 has earned in interest no less than $2,662.35.

B. C. Forbes

Many of those who have withdrawn money from savings banks to gamble in stocks will have less to show by and by than if they had left it on deposit. Commonsense for speculation has become so virulent that caution and conservatism are decried.

Last night I was reading a new volume prescribing the career of John Law, the author of what became known as the "Missing Bubble," two centuries ago. He was first granted power to start a bank in France; next we learned of his colonization scheme in Louisiana, opened a Royal bank, was made Comptroller-General, and issued paper currency galore, entered International trade on a grand scale, and ran his shares up to fabulous heights.

The scene surrounding the speculation the Law shares were not so very different from the scenes witnessed in brokers' offices in this country today. Then, as now, women caught the gambling fever. Brokers' offices had to work night and day to handle the clamor for the stock. Earnings didn't justify the skyrocketing quotations and everybody was dazzled by the rise and did not stop to reason that it could end as a foreordained.

The stories of the profits made then even outdame those related in this country lately—although many of the tales now current here of fortunes made by workmen, maids, bootblacks, barbers and other humbler in the financial scale are becoming numerous and picturesque.

The "Mississippi Bubble" ended disastrously. American conditions represent no bubble. They are, on the contrary, unusually sound. Inflation is conspicuous by its absence throughout industry and business.

But as much cannot be said concerning stock speculation.

This comes from J. A. Hickey, secretary-treasurer of the Eastern Broker Division of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of North America:

"On behalf of the 800 members of this organization, employed as telegraphers in brokerage houses in the financial district, we wish to express our thanks and appreciation for your column of 'Where Is the Best Time to Advance Salaries?'"

I understand that the public are to be given an opportunity to become financially interested in one of the foremost grocery chains in New York and surrounding territory—the Bohack stores. This company, now rated the second largest of its kind in New York, has been built up by an Irish immigrant who had to start work when only a tiny lad. He learned the business, however, from floor sweeper to early saw these possibilities of owning money back here, and invested all his earnings into the business—and became, of course, a millionaire many times over.

I once asked Mr. Reeves what was the secret of success in the chain store business. His emphatic reply was: "Men—getting the right men and training them properly."

Unlike many, Mr. Reeves doesn't try to do everything himself. Nor does he believe in overwork. Rather, he believes in keeping in the very finest fettle, mentally and physically, by getting out on the golf course several afternoons a week.

"I feel I have only begun to scratch the ground—that our business has only got a good start," he declared.

Is there something in the atmosphere of Auld Ireland that inspires so many Irish lads to emigrate to America and become millionaire merchants?

Scores another one for American business men. James P. Butler, president of the Canal Bank & Trust Company, the largest financial institution in New Orleans, and Indicted Uncle Sunta, has just been awarded the loving cup presented annually to the citizen rendering the most distinguished service to the city. This honor was won mainly by "his intelligent, unselfish and indiansinkable services in the safety, relief and prevention work arising from the Mississippi flood."

All business men are not self-seeking money grabbers.

Dwight W. Morrow would make an ideal secretary of State for President Hoover. Not only has he extraordinary ability, but he earned the reputation of being the warmest-hearted, most unselfish man in the whole of New York's financial world. He never has to say at the outset: He always is just himself—and that's enough.

ACTUAL LOSSES AND 'PAPER' DIFFER

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Actual losses in Wall and State Streets and "paper" losses differ. Because a stock runs off $10 a share, it does not necessarily mean at the time the total capitalization of the company could have been sold at the top price. So a good many of these "lost millions" are lost only on paper. Nevertheless, actual losses are sufficiently large to show thousands of speculators that they can get them back only by waiting.

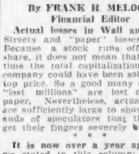
It is now over a year ago since we stated in this column: "I find State Street wondering if the passing of Chairman Loring out of the



Edward Dana Homer Loring

B. & M. means plans for the scrapping of the Saco-Eastern cattle fields between Portsmouth, N. H., and Portland. Mr. Loring fought, will be allowed to die. Well, the tracks are still bearing traffic and the bridge over the Piscataqua is not yet out of commission.

About the only time there was some busy guessing going on about Mr. Loring's future. Some placed Edward Dana of New Haven, who was obviously ridiculous, because Vice-President E. G. Buckland, himself a New Haven director, has been a most powerful factor in building up that line to prosperity from the verge of bankruptcy on financial gantlines seldom do tasks in pairs.

The early part of this year also saw the guessers nominating Mr. Loring to take charge of the American Woolen Co. At the time we stated: "Andrew G. Pierce, jr., successor of the late William M. Wood, has a record of noteworthy achievement in his present office. He comes of the family which founded and built up the Whalling City on the Merrimac. Mrs. Pierce's father not only was a successful cotton mill builder but also trained numerous men who became mill owners themselves. Mr. Pierce was trained by his father, working in the various departments of the Pierce mills and was graduated from M. I. T. He is one of the comparatively few who understand the whole subject of woolen textile industries from A to Z.

"Mr. Pierce's financial training has been augmented by directorates with the First National Bank of Boston and the First National Bank of New Bedford, and the personal investment of his own wealth. "President Pierce has been justifying during 1928 the best expectations of hosts of friends.

The guess of several months ago that there was a chance that directors of the Boston Elevated proved similarly unfounded. Under Gen. Mgr. Edward Dana and the public trustees our transportation system, if not performing actual miracles, has been doing well. Still indeed. If you are inclined to disagree, look back at what has happened to other street railways with the increasing rivalry of the automobile. Nothing finally was found at work on a basis worthy of this or any man's trying, that of bringing the Elevated back to profits on their former high plane of prosperity.

Some insurance writers are still talking about the per capita fire losses of leading American cities. It would be better to make comparisons by means of setting forth percentages of fire losses to property valuations. Such figures are reached by varying methods in the different cities. Many thousands of persons who earn their bread and butter and drive motor cars in Boston live in the outlying towns. These should properly be included in the Boston census, if fire losses are to be reckoned per capita.

Aeroplane or airplane? Usage favors the latter for today. Wright, the first of the aerial navigation stocks on the "big board," avoids the "plane" habit. "Aeroplane is more nautical," Curtiss, next to "arrive," prefers "aeroplane."

Capt. George A. Parker, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, tells me: "We have exhausted our supply of stickers and readily have them renewed by application to the office. We have found one station that reported it had been out of stickers for a fortnight. Capt. Parker suggests that motorists carry extra bulbs for use in case a light is unexpectedly jarred out of operation.

Traffic Club of New England, of which F. C. H. Emery is president and P. L. Stuart secretary and treasurer, holds its 19th annual election at the Copley-Plaza Dec. 13. Robert Poole will give an address on "Flying."

"Send mail to me marked 'Personal,'" requests the Old State Street Trader, continuing: "Then it won't be opened and read more than five or three times before I get it."

MISS BELLAMY AT HER BEST IN FERBER FILM

If the new film at the Olympia and Fenway theaters, "Mother Knows Best," had only popped up a few months earlier, it would undoubtedly be hailed as one of the very finest of the year. But because it arrives late in the time of "the talkies" the producers must needs make room in it for a stretch of dialogue. And it is just that that nosses it out of its laurels. The dialogue is poorly contrived and poorly executed—an inevitable result when the best technique of the silent scenes is forced to bear the style of the present day status in talking pictures.

Madge Bellamy

The principal players are Madge Bellamy, rated as the star; Louise Dresser and Barry Norton. All three are excellent; Miss Dresser and Mr. Norton are superb, and Miss Bellamy acts as she never acted before.

The story is adapted from one by Edna Ferber's scintillating novels. It tells of the stage and in particular of a young actress of exceptional talent who is dominated by her mother. Everything that does not bend toward the girl's precious career is taboo.

Louise Dresser's characterization of the mother is one of the finest things this year. She builds up the role to an astonishing degree; she makes you almost hate her for her relentless subjection of the girl.

Young Barry Norton, who first drew attention with a bit in "What Price Glory," is likewise potent. From the ranks of merely "supporting" player he easily qualifies as first rate star material. The producers should not overlook him.

J. G. Blystone, who used to make those westerns for Tom Mix, directed "Mother Knows Best," and an admirable job he has done with it. Mr. Blystone revealed his worth in many with the "horse opera," and it is good to see him finally at grips with something important. That's a word, the picture is an excellent one—but for its speech.

Panama Canal Record

Panama, C. Z., Dec. 10—Thirty-seven vessels were cleared through the Panama Canal, making a new record for one day's transits.

Not Afraid

MAY McAVOY

Small heroine of "The Terror" at the Scollay easily survives rigors of this high powered mystery-thriller.

Thrilling Mystery Film at Scollay

"The Terror," an all-talking picture, starring May McAvoy and Louise Fazenda, now showing at the Scollay, is a thrilling mystery based on the play of the same name now in its third capacity year on a London stage.

The voice of each member of the cast is heard throughout the entire action of the picture, creating the same effect as a production on the legitimate stage.

A picture of this type seems especially suited to spoken dialogue, for the sensitive quality of the voice vividly interprets the highly dramatic moments of suspense and fear that are a feature of this absorbing picture.

In conjunction with "The Terror" the usual Scollay vaudeville, featuring Bessie Hempel and Billy Howard & Co. is showing.

FLIGHTS and FLIERS

by

George W. Hamblin

"I have probably smashed up more aeroplanes than any other woman in the world," confessed Lady Heath with engaging frankness—as she and the writer of this column clambered into a Stinson Detroiter which the English woman was about to pilot on a trial spin.

The slight tenseness in the atmosphere was relieved, however, by Lady Heath's further comment that "the first 200 hours were the worst," and that all her crashes occurred during that period of her training.

Certainly, during the flying she did from the East Boston port, Lady Heath showed not the slightest sign of uncertainty in the handling of any of the various ships with which she experimented.

She is a real pilot. The Stinson Detroiters are not easy to control, but the English aviatrix took right off and landed it twice without instruction and without awkwardness. She also flew straight.

Lady Heath expressed herself as delighted with American built machines. She has found them sturdy and not difficult to operate.

The air lanes to the south still hold a certain fascination for those who have made one trip and long for another. Ralph T. Wickford, chief pilot for the Pilgrim Air Service, is studying hard for his license for a limited commercial pilot's license. Winthrop O. Sargent, Federal inspector, will be in Boston before the end of the month, right on top of the necessary knowledge. For this license, a transport, which requires 200 solo hours, and a private license, which one gets with 10 solo hours, one must pass a written examination, in addition to the flying test.

A chap who has put in plenty of flying time since he was "turned loose," is on the verge of his limited license. This young man went solo about two months ago and has about 53 hours to his credit. Watch him.

DOLORES TURNS TO WORK FOR RELIEF

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10—Work is said to be a panacea for all ills. Maybe that is what Edwin Carewe feels for he is planning to start work on "Evangeline" before Christmas, which will give Dolores Del Rio an opportunity to forget her recent separation of her husband, James Del Rio.

Miss Del Rio's grief is said to be very sincere and real. So much so that she hasn't been able for the last few days to discuss costumes and powder puffs, nevertheless production on the picture goes on.

Alex B. Francis has been signed to play Father Felician, the role next in importance to that of Evangeline and Gabriel. As for Gabriel he is still among the great unselected. For some reason Edwin Carewe has decided not to let Roland Drew play that part. I wonder why? Carewe has let it be known he wants a very young and probably a more boyish type.

"LORD BYRON of Broadway," the breezy story of a jazz hound and his adventures, has been purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer from Nellie Martin, the author.

"Lord Byron of Broadway" is a novel and a play that I wonder why it is as if it were just meant for William Haines. Furthermore, I really believe it is. If Bill Haines, although I couldn't induce anyone on the M. G. M. lot to comment thereupon.

Bessie Love, no rumor says, will play opposite Billy and do her singing, dancing and also playing all in sound. Billy and Bessie should be a cheerful combination so let's hope the rumor that Bessie is to be featured and Billy is to be starred in this picture, is not a pipe dream.

I NEVER thought they would be able to persuade Harry Richman to leave the bright lights of Broadway. What with the "George White Scandals" and the Harry Richman night club, his attachment for the Great White Way is not merely one of affection but one of financial interest. But Richman is coming to Hollywood, that is, he still is of the same mind next summer for "Song of Broadway." The Richman talks of his new film at the United Artists' studio here.

John W. Considine, Jr., producer; Alex Gottlieb, director; Frederick Sullivan, writer, and Joe E. Brown, one of the players, are all returning to Hollywood from New York. It is supposed to come here late in the spring or early in the summer to make the picture which, of course, means that the production is postponed for some months.

THE interpolation of songs and the Al Jolson personality are so largely responsible for the Jolson successes in the talkies that the play is incidental. Yet there must be a play and lines. Therefore Julian Josephson has been engaged by Warner Brothers to write the continuity and dialogue for "Mammy," the next Jolson picture.

There still persists a rumor that Ruby Keeler and Al Jolson are man and wife because her husband but Florenz Ziegfeld has a far-seeing eye and since Mrs. Jolson was under contract to him there is every reason to believe that he would object to prevent her from appearing for any other company whether it was theatrical or motion picture.

HAROLD LLOYD will not let the talkies interfere with his methods of making comedies. His comedies have proved to be best actions in the past and why should he risk tampering with a well known quantity. It's true he is going to do a talkie but first he will spend two or three months producing a silent picture. He will go ahead and make a complete silent version before he adds a single dialogue and then after he has produced his picture and made his changes he will make a sound version with synchronization and dialogue.

Sensible boy, Harold, for if in seven months the talkies have ceased to be all-powerful he will have no cause to worry, for he can eliminate the sound version.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random. Al Jolson smashing his finger on his wife's face. Alice Joy learning to play Russian bank. Marion Davies in a blue evening dress with blue wrap to match, conversing with Bebe Daniels. Madame Chevalley demonstrating to her husband how well she has learned to cook Brackets.

Betty Compson eating a raw onion and liking it. Milton Sills yelling for more cocktails. Richard Dix Moore for his work in "The Barker," Doris Kenyon in a stunning gold lame evening gown. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

"Show Girl" at Netoco Casino

Light and airy as a soap bubble, and one of the funniest bits of screen amusement is "Show Girl," the sound picturization of J. P. McEvoy's novel, now at the Netoco, which heads the bill this week at the Netoco Casino.

Dorothy Mackaill, the delicious Alice White appears in the role of Dixie Dugan, who climbs from a lowly position as stenographer in a greeting card factory to the dizzy heights of Broadway stardom.

The supporting cast in "Show Girl" contains Charles Delaney, Donald Reed, Kate Price, Gwen Lee, James Finlayson, Richard Tucker and Lee Moran.

The companion picture is "South of Panama," a romantic drama of gun runners and soldiers of fortune, in the exciting section of a South American revolution. Carmelita Geraghty and Philo McCullough are featured. Four vaudeville acts round out the program.

HONOR WRIGHTS AS PIONEERS OF AVIATION

Dayton, Dec. 10 (AP)—The "Cradle of Aviation" today paid tribute to the man who rocked the cradle during the trying years of aviation's early history.

Orville Wright, who with his late brother, Wilbur, perfected and flew the first successful flying machine, was the center of a civic celebration to demonstrate that the first man to fly is not a prophet with no honor in his own community.

Seventy-five delegates from foreign nations, including many diplomatic officials and accredited envoys, joined in the full day's celebration.

SEE OLD WRIGHT HANGAR.

A trip to the army aeronautical laboratory at Wright Field, which the officials past an old barnlike hangar and flying field which the Wright brothers used in their early flying days. It was there that they set up a shop to improve their plane after their first successful flight at Kittyhawk, S. C., just 25 years ago this month.

Dinner was now play about the old Wright hangar, while weeds grew high in "Huffman prairies," which was the Wrights' airdrome after they left Kittyhawk in 1903, to "carry on" their world-moving experiments.

Representing the latest development in American airplane design, swept above the old Wright flying field yesterday carrying the foreign delegations to Dayton from Chicago.

VISIT WRIGHT'S GRAVE

The four delegations, together with Government air officials, were to pay tribute to the memory of Wilbur Wright by placing flowers at a visit to his grave in Woodland Cemetery. He died 10 years after his brother flew their first plane.

Brig.-Gen. Lord Thomson, former British minister of the air, and Pierre Etienne Flandin, vice-president of the French Chamber of Deputies, were to carry the world's message of recognition and honor to Mr. Wright at tonight's banquet.

"Toilers" Feature at Twin Theaters

"The Toilers," a melodrama of the coal mines, synchronized with music and dialogue, enters upon its second week at the Modern and Beacon Theaters. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., heads the cast, in the role of the young miner who returns home with Jobyna Ralston lightens the stark realism of the piece.

Fist fights, black villains, entombed miners, fighting for their lives thousands of feet below the surface, and a love story between high love interest and delightful comedy touches comprise the many ingredients. Fairbanks, Jr., proves himself to be an actor of polish. His stage training stands him in good stead. Jobyna Ralston ends a demure and delightful heroine. Wade Boteler and Harvey Clark are in the supporting cast.

Three Movietone acts are on the same bill: Raquel Meller, famous Spanish singer; Nina Terasiva and the Russian Cathedral choir, and Rinaldi and Ruby Keeler (Mrs. Al Jolson).

Joe Rines and Band Hit of Elks "Roof"

Joe Rines and his "Blue Bird Orchestra" are proving the magnet to large crowds at the Roof Garden Restaurant at the Elks Hotel. Capacity has been the rule at both the dinner dance and the supper dance. Rines and his band of syncopators furnish music in the most delightful of all dance rendering for the talking machines. Rines is one of the best known radio artists.

High Schools Get a Lot of Criticism, but They Do Fit Boys for College

The more or less common belief that when he goes to college the scholastic advantage is all with the boy from the private school is somewhat shaken by figures made public by the administrative offices of Harvard.

The reckonings are of the freshman years of the present senior and junior classes.

The class of '29 in its freshman year had a total enrollment of 880 men, 411 from private, 436 from public schools. The others came from tutors.

Of the 436 public school graduates, 102 made the dean's list at the close of the year and the records of 60 were "unsatisfactory."

Of the 411 who came from private schools, "exclusive" and expensive, only 53 made the dean's list. The records of 92 were unsatisfactory.

Superiority of public over private school training is even more apparent in the freshman record of the Class of '30.

Although public school men outnumbered the private school contingent by only eight they outnumbered them on the dean's list by 54.

Nor was this all; when the end of the year was reached the number of high school men with "unsatisfactory" records was smaller by 58 than the number of private school men who had failed to measure up.

Tutoring schools, one gathers from these Harvard figures, make the least satisfactory showing of all, possibly because so many hopeless cases are dumped upon them. In last year's freshman class there were 48 men who had been prepared by tutors. Only two made the dean's list. Unsatisfactory record was the portion of 20. TWELVE were dismissed.

There has been so much criticism of the schools, and from so many directions, that it is good to know that they stand up so well in competition.

The curriculum is weighed down with "fads and frills"; sessions are too short, vacations too long; studies are made too easy; there is little or no discipline; young people are going to ruin through "too many parties and too many thrills."

These are SOME of the complaints.

Louder yet is the lament of the taxpayer; school departments have an appetite for money that NO budget can satisfy.

The private school boy has no parties and few thrills; HIS study hours are supervised. There is no quarrelling with him about home work for all his work is done in residence. In college, he really ought to run the high school boy ragged. The Harvard figures show him to be a trailer. They indicate one of two things; either the "prep" school is short of some of the advantages which have been claimed for it or the public high school is doing better work than it has been given credit for generally.

The truth, we believe, is that the work of the preparatory school ranges from medium to good. The high school is a better school for the average boy.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and fooling around with a neighbor's weight-lifting machine until I acquired a crick in my back and then to breakfast, meeting Karl Harriman, who has abandoned magazine editing and has a big glass-topped desk with rows of push buttons in Philadelphia.

Then to the Metropolitan club to a reception Ray Long held for William J. Locke, the English novelist, who is distinguished, as might be expected, by his supreme simplicity, and a notable group there. Then to my lodgings to sit at my typewriter overwhelmed by an inadequacy.

In the evening to a play and saw Italph Barton, the artist, who has finished a history book of America, and sold his Paris home in rue Nicoli to live on the Normandy countryside. And on the sly home looked up Earl Carroll and Dorothy Knapp and carried them off for a flagon of orange juice. Then to bed.

EARL CARROLL, incidentally, has a microphone arrangement in a private room back stage of his theater which records the emotional reactions of the audience to his show. He is able to loll in a comfortable chair and receive the hot and cold attitudes of audiences toward his players and their lines.

A RETIRED merchant with a modest fortune is acting as night watchman around building construction. His evenings had been spent sitting at home, puffing a pipe, watching people pass by and reading until late into the night. He discovered he could pursue the same formula on a night watch job and be paid for it.

ON Sixth ave. in the 30's are innumerable fur shops which remain open until midnight and after and whose windows are filled with marked down furs—from the big minks for waddling ladies to the fox neckpiece for flappers. Each shop seems to go from one type of sale to another and late at night they are popular with the smooth young ladies who pilot their boy friends there—hopefully, of course.

FURRIERS are frequently tricked by professional shoplifting ladies who come into their shops wearing imitation furs and exchange them for the real thing. Only recently on Fifth ave. a woman tried on a Russian sable coat worth $28,000 and while the salesman was off guard a moment walked out. She left a coat worth $350. And if I were a fur dealer that would certainly make me mad.

TWO plays this season were saved from Al Cain's warehouse by smashing lines at the final curtain. This is a new trick in dramaturgy. Producers have discovered that with this dramatic gesture audiences are likely to forget the tedious drivel preceding. In one an actor applies an unprintable shocker to close friend and fellow worker and the audience departs seemingly convinced it has had a hot evening.

EVERY Broadway play is timed carefully to run the fixed stage union limit for the good reason a fraction of a minute overtime requires a full hour's pay for the stage crew. Even an extra 10 seconds has cost producers a neat sum.

IN one theater the chorus girls have their names painted on the dressing rooms they occupy and the same theater furnishes their cigarettes free.

IF there is anything so melancholy as a darkened and deserted stage—save Cherbourg in a drizzling rain—I have never seen it. They are so ghostly that the late C. F. Frohman would never visit them without an escort, and even then he insisted upon a flood of lights. He had no fear of ghosts but a spell of melancholia.

ONE of the smart cafes now features a "dejeuner a la fourchette"—they laughed when I told them I could speak French—and only forks are used. Knives and spoons are strictly taboo. The spoon has already lost the virginal traces of its spoonhood. There are forks instead of spoons for almost everything and it is becoming almost vulgar to use a knife.

IT may not be long now until we get down to eating with our fingers entirely, and then a lot of country boys will shine.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY'RE going to do something about these Bossy Mamas in Vienna. They've organized a "League of Men" to combat "the growing domination by women." But they're not expecting any help from Yankee husbands—no indeedy!

"American men are too cowardly to organize against women," says Herr Von Schwarzthal, president of the new league.

"England responded more readily to the battle cry of our crusaders. One of our honorary members is Lord Philmore, president of the International Law Association. He fully recognized the necessity for revision of marriage and alimony laws, which show a hostile tendency against men all over Europe and America.

"Our laws as they exist now, only support the tyranny of modern women, who demand all rights and refuse all duties; who are marrying men only to lead a carefree, workless, childless life; or to obtain a divorce and lifelong alimony. Some girls regard even motherhood as an opportunity to take hold of some wealthy alimony payer.

"Our league is fighting for the emancipation of the oppressed male sex. We demand a reviction of the present alimony law. We want only equality and we protest against favoritism of the legislative and judicial authorities in favor of women. Is it not a shame that the police invariably side with women whenever a domestic quarrel develops?

"This tyranny of women is destroying men's faculties. The men are becoming weaklings without the power to make decisions unless woman tells them what to do. Only the emancipation of man can prevent our race from declining and going into absolute ruin."

Which listens wonderful.

But will it buy the boys anything?

It will not. Organizations of Peevish Papas will only prolong the ancient feud between men and women. Good sense and fair play alone can cure that feud.

We're up against the truth at last that women are people as well as men. And they're people in exactly the same way in which men are people. All of these artificial distinctions which we have made between the sexes are bunk. God didn't give man any Divine Grant to be boss. Nature didn't endow males with superior brains or women with superior souls. We were created EQUAL—and if we have muddled through painful years of inequality that's our own fault and we needn't blame it on God.

We're coming out of those years of inequality. We're still gummed up with a lot of spite and silly sentimentality, but we're catching a vision of real equality at last. There will always be some men strong enough to dominate some women—and some women strong enough to dominate some men. But in the long run domination by either sex is bad medicine for the whole human tribe. Free and willing partnership—that's the only relation ship for civilized men and women.

National Policies of the Hearst Papers

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Barking Up the Manna Tree

by Herbert Kaufman

If the bell isn't ringing you've missed the mark. Pay envelopes promptly tell where all well-aimed effort lands. Business only fares far while it plays fair.

Employers who cheat merit, double-cross their own pockets.

Competition has a bushel basket job waiting for every shining light cramped in a pint measure.

If you're a star you won't long twinkle unseen. The want ads will find you in time.

Good men are so scarce that Opportunity grows corns questing the country for 'em.

Dollars and cents can't afford to lose first-class workers, or overpay incompetent ones.

Wherever you hear mutters of "inappreciation," "raw deals" and "no chance," it's generally the empty noise of a blank cartridge muffing his target.

The fairest haired boy sooner or later winds up in the red ink-well.

The balance sheet finally calls the four-flusher. Where the profit and loss account doesn't regulate promotion, bankruptcy is turning the knob.

Capital in sheer selfishness must recognize the dividend producer and pay him full market value for services rendered.

Experience warns management that it costs less to retain ability than to replace it.

The presidents of International Harvester Company, Rock Island and New York Central railroads, Standard Oil Company of New York and the New York Telephone Company, all risen from the humblest ranks of their organizations, give the lie to your whine that it takes pull and influence to get ahead.

"Constant readers" who wonder how some folk have all the luck are barking up the manna tree.

Success doesn't drop from its branches.

It's the fruit of reliability, concentration, exactness and persistance, which anybody, including the deaf, dumb and blind, can cultivate.

As long as Helen Keller manages to make the grade with sixty per cent of her cylinders missing, no able-bodied, full-motored failure is entitled to a tow-line.

"V" VERSES
by Herbert Kaufman
Vim Vigor Victory
Although you think it can't be done
The farthest goal will yet be won.
Despite your shrugs and little jeers,
A bolder man will breast the years
And live to hear his fellows' cheers—
There are no barriers but fears.
Before God's will
And human skill
There'll never be a halting hill.

For the Chosen Few

In this "act" which enables Georges Carpentier to make money comfortably and easily, the brilliant young Frenchman sings and points at the lady, saying, "That's My Weakness, Now."

The English accent isn't so good, but his dancing and acting ARE good.

Whenever Carpentier is mentioned, it should be remembered that he interrupted his boxing to fight for years in the French army. He did not imitate some of OUR distinguished boxers that, when the war broke out, interrupted their boxing to crawl under the bed.
